Taft Fans Feud In Off-Shore Oil Measure Study

Word Battle Rages
After Charges Of Stalling Tactics

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) touched off a brisk word battle today by charging that opponents of the offshore oil lands bill are holding up the entire legislative program of the Senate by a filibuster.

Taft, the Senate Republican leader, spoke out angrily as the 12th day of debate began on a measure to establish states' title to submerged lands off their shores.

Referring to opponents who have blocked a vote on the bill by making long speeches and engaging in other delaying tactics, Taft told the Senate:

"Anybody who filibusters a bill, assumes the responsibility not only of delaying this legislation but of delaying the entire program of the Senate."

Taft said he was "shocked and surprised" that such senators as Lehman (D-Lib-NY), Douglas (D-Ill.), and Humphrey (D-Minn.) "who have denounced filibusters now obviously engaged in a filibuster" contrary to everything they stood for in the past.

Opponents of the measure have denied they are waging a filibuster.

Taft sought a unanimous consent agreement to limit debate next week, but Sen. Hill (D-Ala.) who completed a three-day, 16½ hours "first" speech yesterday, objected.

Hill said he believed in "free and open debate."

Taft repeated that "everything that can be said on the bill has been said."

He estimated that 500,000 words have been spoken since April 1 on the Senate floor. Through last Wednesday night, he said, proponents had spoken 22,000 lines or 155,000 words in the Congressional Record, and opponents 33,000 lines or 233,000 words.

Sen. Douglas said he had a few statistics of his own.

Of the 40 sponsors of the state ownership bill, he said, 37 voted against a motion by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) early this year which he said would have "put an end to filibusters."

Murder Trial At Jena Set For Monday

JENA, La., April 18 (AP) — Two Jena men will go on trial Monday charged with murder in the death last year of 24-year-old Donald Floyd, son of slain state police trooper Ulla Floyd.

The two are Luther Pearson and Martin Jackson, who were acquitted in January of murder in the death of the state trooper.

Judge Vincent Mouser overruled a motion by defense counsel last week asking for a change of venue in the trial because of "prejudice existing in the public mind against the two defendants, growing out of news stories published in newspapers of half a dozen cities."

Judge Mouser ordered the trial to begin at 10 a. m. Monday.

Both men were tried twice on the charge of murder in the death of trooper Floyd. The first ended in a mistrial and the second in acquittal.

The two trials were held in Columbia instead of Jena, where all resided after a change of venue granted last June.

Pearson and Jackson were indicted in the death of the younger Floyd in mid-March, a few days after they had filed suits seeking $67,000 in damages from officers whom they claimed shot them as they were attempting to surrender after the deaths of the two Floyds.

The state contends that Donald Floyd met his death after running to the aid of his father. The allegation said that Pearson and Jackson shot the younger Floyd after his father had fallen. The shooting, allegedly occurred in the front yard of the Floyd home on Feb. 24, 1952.

U. N. Approves Communists Bid For Truce Talks

PANMUNJOM, Korea, Sunday, April 19 (AP)—The U. N. Command today accepted a Communist proposal that full-scale Korean armistice talks be resumed next Saturday, April 25, at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Friday, April 24, EST).

The U. N. had suggested that the full-dress talks be resumed Wednesday, April 23, but accepted the Communist date of April 25.

Agreement to resume the talks, which broke down last Oct. 8 over the issue of over-all prisoner exchange, was made at a meeting of liaison officers at Panmunjom this morning.

The chief of the Allied Liaison group, Rear Adm. John C. Daniel, told correspondents after the session:

"Again we have taken the initiative and requested an earlier date than the Communists could meet."

He said the United Nations had not discussed any of the other matters outlined in the Allied letter earlier this week, but the Communists had "made a rather long discourse which I'm not prepared to comment on without further study."

Medical Finances Drive Is Launched For Ailing Youth

BOGALUSA, La., April 18 (UP)—Bogalusa residents have launched a campaign to raise $1,000 to pay for medical treatment for a handsome 18-year-old youth who has been handicapped for five years by a mysterious illness.

Neighbors of the J. T. Smith family have placed a collection box in local grocery stores and next week will begin circulating a petition.

The youth, Johnny Smith, has not been able to attend school or even leave his home since 1948 when he began suffering with fainting spells.

Mrs. Smith said that her son often passes out as many as 20 times a day.

A doctor at Ville Platte, La., who has treated the youth, said he has not been able to learn the exact nature of his illness but that it stems from pressure on a nerve over the right ear. The doctor said the trouble could be cured through an operation.

Mrs. Smith said that the family can not afford the operation because they have depleted their savings already on doctors and medicine.

Red Enslavement Hopes Are Ended, Dulles Declares

Three Apt To Bid For Judge In W. Monroe

Mayor Norris Only
Man Committed
For The Top Job

As official West Monroe seethed yesterday on the heels of a state supreme court ouster of the mayor and city judge, anticipation flared on who might be candidates to fill the court-declared vacancies.

Ousted Mayor J. Allen Norris appeared as the only definite candidate for the mayor's job but three candidates seemed apparent in the race for the city judgeship.

In addition to Howell H. Heard, the Kennon-appointed judge held illegal through the courts, two other West Monroe attorneys loomed as likely candidates for the judgeship. Jesse Norris and John F. McCormick are considered by political observers to be "in the race."

Attorney Norris, who pushed the court test of the legality in appointing five West Monroe officials, would not confirm rumors that he would be in the judicial race. However, he did say "I most assuredly am considering such a step."

At the outset Norris arranged the services of the Alexandria law firm Gravel and Downs to handle litigation in the intrusion of office case against West Monroe's mayor, Judge and three city aldermen.

McCormick, for many years West Monroe's city attorney, has declared himself "out of politics" but speculation that he will be a candidate for judge has grown since it became apparent that Heard would be ousted by the courts.

Heard himself has said he is willing to bow to the court ruling and added that he would be a candidate to fill, by election, the post he has held for the past 11 months under an appointment.

The state supreme court Thursday upheld a district court decision holding Norris and Heard illegally in office. Both have voiced intentions to file a motion for rehearing of their cases before the high court merely as a formality.

The supreme court wrote a unanimous decision against the two officials indicating that a request for a rehearing would be futile.

As for the case of the three aldermen's posted the circuit court of appeals said the supreme court ruling on the mayor, judge ouster would be applicable to the cases against the lesser officials.

Though it is generally believed that the three aldermen will be candidates in any special election none have publicly committed themselves. Neither have any other prospective aldermanic candidates.

Foreign Policy Speech Aimed At Red Leaders

Bid Is Offered
To Enter Ike's
'Peace Mansion'

WASHINGTON, April 18—UP—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles confidently told Russia Saturday night that growing Allied strength has ended its hopes for world enslavement, and he challenged the Communists to enter "the mansion of peace" opened by President Eisenhower.

"In a major foreign policy address before the American Society of newspaper editors, Dulles said the way has been cleared for the Communists to end a black chapter of distrust and open a bright new chapter of peace and goodwill throughout the world.

But he bluntly emphasized over and over again that the Kremlin leaders should not mistake Mr. Eisenhower's total peace plan for weakness.

"We are not dancing to any Russian tune," he said.

Then he outlined a new long-range program—encompassing perhaps up to 20 or 30 years—to make Europe secure against Russian aggression should the Soviet leaders spurn all of Mr. Eisenhower's "total peace" program.

"Total peace," Dulles said, has discarded a "spasmodic approach" to building up the strength of its North Atlantic treaty partners. Its new program will provide Europe with "substantial insurance against being overrun by Soviet attack."

In the European defense community, the secretary pointedly told the new Red regime.

"The Soviet union now faces the likelihood that Western Europe will produce a unified military force, including French and Germans. This would come to a final end one of the hopes from which Soviet imperialism has taken comfort."

Stating that Russia is one of the "peace defensive" not "peace offensive," he said there are indications now that the Communists want a peace in Korea which they have evaded for nearly two years. But he said it might only be a Soviet disposition to change tactics.

He emphasized, as Mr. Eisenhower did, that the United States welcomes an Armistice in Korea but that the assumption that it will lead to a peace which accords with the principles of the United Nations—and that means a free and united Korea.

"Of course we want peace in Korea," Dulles added. "But we do not play the role of supplicants."

Then he pointedly reviewed what the administration is doing to build up strength on Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Island of Formosa; helping the French in Indo-China, and tightening the economic blockade of Red China.

Arrest Made In Wisner Poisoning

WISNER, Apr. 19 (Special)—Mrs. Eddie Ferrington, 47, was arrested here today by deputies of the Franklin parish sheriff's department on a warrant charging her with poisoning her step-son John K. Ferrington, 42, a news vendor, on March 21.

The warrant was signed by Judge Ferrington, a brother of the dead man and step-son of the accused. Members of the family stated that Mrs. Ferrington had attempted to poison him on earlier occasions and once had been placed in a mental institution as a result of such an attempt.

The state laboratory in New Orleans said Friday that evidence of poisoning definitely was found in an investigation of vital organs of Ferrington, which were sent by Dr. Henry Jones, Franklin parish coroner, who had his body exhumed for autopsy only 10 days after burial.

Ferrington collapsed at the home of a customer of March 21 and died a few hours later in a nearby hospital, apparently as a result of a stroke.

At the time of his death Ferrington was residing with his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ferrington, at Route 1, Wisner.

Joshua Trees Flame Like Roman Candles

before the battle-equipped Marines scrambled from their trenches and charged toward ground zero. The exercise teamed Leatherneck assault tactics with nuclear power.

As for the explosion itself, "the very dazzling light was almost indescribable," said the officer, who declined the use of his name. He is a public information officer.

"Even with our heads down and our eyes closed the terrific white light seemed almost to blind us. The earth shook just like in an earthquake."

The officer said the boiling fireball shot skyward, although it was hard to distinguish because of dust and dirt. "The loud speaker announced that in a matter of seconds the atomic cloud had shot up to 40,000 feet and was a mile wide," he added.

"By the time we'd climbed out of our trenches, the sight was terrifyingly beautiful," he declared. "About that time one of the Joshua trees (a cactus-like tree) about 170 yards away was ignited. I realized what would have happened to me if I hadn't been in a trench."

Helicopters carrying Leathernecks to leapfrog over their buddies arrived a few minutes after the explosion. "At first," said the officer, "the area was so 'hot' (radioactively) and the 'copters had to make a second pass."

Coming into Monroe on an early bus, a salesman found no downtown stores open and he was consumed with a passion to have an early morning smoke. A boy in his teens selling newspapers was observed to be smoking.

The man approached him, "Say, son," he said, "have you got an early cigarette?"

"I don't have it, but I do have the mags," he reported.

"That's fine," the man replied, "but I'm not much good rolling a cigarette, would you mind doing one for me?"

"Yes, I'll gladly do it for you," the boy said and quickly and nimbly he performed the task.

"But, I'll have to ask for a match," the man confessed, and the boy provided one.

"Sam, seems like all you have got is the habit," the lad responded.

Cattle Group Slates Its Largest Sale

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 18 (AP)—The Louisiana Guernsey Cattle Club's eighth annual sale on May 30 will be the group's largest, president Morgan Walker said today.

Walker said a large consignment of cattle has been brought from Virginia.

Two sales divisions are planned with junior buyers vying in a non-competitive selection sale in the morning and adult buyers competing in the afternoon sale.

Consignments from Mississippi and Texas have been committed, Walker said, but the junior sale will be limited to 4-H Club and FFA members from Louisiana.

Red Enslavement Hopes Are Ended, Dulles Declares

Three Apt To Bid For Judge In W. Monroe

Mayor Norris Only
Man Committed
For The Top Job

As official West Monroe seethed yesterday on the heels of a state supreme court ouster of the mayor and city judge, anticipation flared on who might be candidates to fill the court-declared vacancies.

Ousted Mayor J. Allen Norris appeared as the only definite candidate for the mayor's job but three candidates seemed apparent in the race for the city judgeship.

In addition to Howell H. Heard, the Kennon-appointed judge held illegal through the courts, two other West Monroe attorneys loomed as likely candidates for the judgeship. Jesse Norris and John F. McCormick are considered by political observers to be "in the race."

Attorney Norris, who pushed the court test of the legality in appointing five West Monroe officials, would not confirm rumors that he would be in the judicial race. However, he did say "I most assuredly am considering such a step."

At the outset Norris arranged the services of the Alexandria law firm Gravel and Downs to handle litigation in the intrusion of office case against West Monroe's mayor, judge and three city aldermen.

McCormick, for many years West Monroe's city attorney, has declared himself "out of politics" but speculation that he will be a candidate for judge has grown since it became apparent that Heard would be ousted by the courts.

Heard himself has said he is willing to bow to the court ruling and added that he would be a candidate to fill, by election, the post he has held for the past 11 months under an appointment.

The state supreme court Thursday upheld a district court decision holding Norris and Heard illegally in office. Both have voiced intentions to file a motion for rehearing of their cases before the high court merely as a formality.

The supreme court wrote a unanimous decision against the two officials indicating that a request for a rehearing would be futile.

As for the case of the three aldermen's posts the circuit court of appeals said the supreme court ruling on the mayor, judge posts would be applicable to the cases against the lesser officeholders.

Though it is generally believed that the three aldermen will be candidates in any special election none have publicly committed themselves. Neither have any other prospective aldermanic candidates.

Arrest Made In Wisner Poisoning

WISNER, Apr. 19 (Special)—Mrs. Eddie Ferrington, 47, was arrested here today by deputies of the Franklin parish sheriff's department on a warrant charging her with poisoning her stepson John K. Ferrington, 42, a news vendor, on March 21.

The warrant was signed by Judge Ferrington, a brother of the dead man and stepson of the accused. Members of the family stated that Mrs. Ferrington had attempted to poison him on earlier occasions and once had been placed in a mental institution as a result of such an attempt.

The state laboratory in New Orleans said Friday that evidence of poisoning definitely was found in an investigation of vital organs of Ferrington, which were sent by Dr. Henry Jones, Franklin parish coroner, who had his body exhumed for autopsy only 10 days after burial.

Ferrington collapsed at the home of a customer on March 21 and died a few hours later in a nearby hospital, apparently as a result of a stroke.

At the time of his death Ferrington was residing with his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ferrington, at Route 1, Wisner.

Foreign Policy Speech Aimed At Red Leaders

Bid Is Offered
To Enter Ike's
'Peace Mansion'

WASHINGTON, April 18—UP—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles confidently told Russia Saturday night that growing Allied strength has ended its hopes for world enslavement, and he challenged the Communists to enter "the mansion of peace" opened by President Eisenhower.

"In a major foreign policy address before the American Society of newspaper editors, Dulles said the way has been cleared for the Communists to end a black chapter of distrust and open a bright new chapter of peace and goodwill" throughout the world.

But he bluntly emphasized over and over again that the Kremlin leaders should not mistake Mr. Eisenhower's total peace plan for weakness.

"We are not dancing to any Russian tune," he said.

Then he outlined a new long-range program—encompassing perhaps up to 20 or 30 years—to make Europe secure against Russian aggression should the Soviet leaders spurn all of Mr. Eisenhower's "total peace" program.

The administration, Dulles said, has discarded a "spasmoid approach" to building up the strength of its North Atlantic treaty partners. Its new program will provide Europe with "substantial insurance against being overrun by Soviet attack."

In the European defense community, the secretary pointedly told the new Red regime.

"The Soviet union now faces the likelihood that Western Europe will produce a unified military force, including French and Germans. This would come to a final end of the hopes from which Soviet imperialism has taken comfort."

Stating that Russia is one of the "peace defensive" not "peace offensive," he said there are indications now that the Communists want a peace in Korea which they have evaded for nearly two years.

But he said it might only be a Soviet disposition to change tactics.

He emphasized, as Mr. Eisenhower did, that the United States welcomes an Armistice in Korea "but on the assumption that it will lead to a peace which accords with the principles of the United Nations—and that means a free and united Korea."

"Of course we want peace in Korea," Dulles added. "But we do not play the role of supplicants."

Then he pointedly reviewed what the administration is doing to build up strength on Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Island of Formosa; helping the French in Indo-China, and tightening the economic blockade of Red China.

Hospital-Building Recalls First 'Millionaire' Here

By H. H. BRINSMADE
Erection of the new St. Francis Sanitarium expansion, costing close to two million dollars, recalls to older residents that in 1929, a local man sprang into the limelight when he suddenly declared that as an heir to the Jennings estate in England he would inherit millions. He promised to build a great free hospital here, a church or two, and also to benefit many in various ways. But tragedy wiped out his life, and no trace that would bear out his claims to future wealth were ever found.

Walter P. Wells, bridge foreman here for many years, suddenly proclaimed that he was an heir to the British estate and that he would inherit millions.

This preliminary story was streamered on page one of the News-Star, and day by day the story was amplified. It was found that there is in fact a famous and fabulous unsettled Jennings estate in London, England, and also there are known to be many heirs in the United States. To this day, though it has never been settled.

Wells was a man in his sixties and a bachelor. He had lived in Monroe and worked for the railroad for 20 years. He had not publicized extensively the fact that he was heir to a fortune until it became widely known and the story attracted state-wide attention, especially when he stated he planned a big free hospital for Monroe, a large new church, and for each of his friends, a 20 acre pecan grove was promised.

He was deluged with "friends"—they came from all directions. Women, old and young sought to be the wife of this man.

As time went on, he was wined and dined by many persons here who visioned that in the end they would be well paid.

Then one day, Wells gave to the press the statement that his lawyer in Lynchburg, Va. had informed him that the estate would be settled in 60 days and that he would receive easily five million dollars.

Far more parties, dinners and cocktail events came Mr. Wells' way at this announcement.

All this happened over a period of about six months. Then one frosty night in November, 1929, a man's body was found on the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks. The body was so badly mutilated that identification was almost impossible.

Mrs. Gail Monroe, at whose house Wells had roomed for many years, was apprehensive when he failed to return at night. She visited the Peters morgue and with tears in her eyes, identified pieces of clothing as that of Mr. Wells.

Coroner C. P. Gray, Sr. held an inquest which was inconclusive but the jury decided to return a verdict of accidental death. But the sheriff's department also was asked to investigate which was done by the staff of Milton Coverdale and they could not find evidence of foul play.

With the aid of Mrs. Monroe, who knew the addresses of the lawyer in Lynchburg and of brothers and sisters of Wells in Virginia, efforts were directed to find relatives and also to ascertain what was the status of the big "fortune."

Every effort failed. No one knew of the lawyer or of his Virginia relatives. Other efforts in London, England, through barristers there, disclosed that there was a vast Jennings fortune, but there was no linkup with Wells in its connection.

The many "friends" of Wells vanished. At his funeral and interment in the Potter's field here, there were barely a dozen in attendance. The grave in the Monroe Catholic cemetery is still unmarked.

It is an unsolved mystery how one man fooled so many. The Italian expended nearly $2,000 in wine suppers for Wells.

Not even a bank account was found here for bankers stated they never carried an account for Wells nor did they ever cash a check for him.

How did Wells manage to fool so many, still is the question and why did he not obtain large sums of money from gullible people of Monroe? In his prime he could have borrowed heavily on his "prospects." But he never did.

The writer of this story unraveled as far as he could the story of Wells, but in manner that ended nowhere. But the story was of value from a news sense, as it made front page for days, weeks and even months.

1. ARE WOMEN SCHOOL TEACHERS MORE LIKELY TO BECOME NEUROTIC THAN OTHER WOMEN?
YES ☐ NO ☐ 4-18

2. CAN YOU DEVELOP ONE GOOD HABIT TO OVERCOME PERSONALITY WEAKNESSES?
YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Probably, but a study by J. L. Malloch did not find any decisive difference. However, in "several good school systems" psychologist Norman Fenton found that approximately one out of four were "maladjusted." The National Education Association says that "such teachers exert a bad mental influence on children and should not be allowed to remain in the classroom." It's a wonder to me all school teachers don't go crazy because of their low salaries and the demands of children, parents, School Boards, etc.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. One habit alone will not do it, but the development of many will improve your personality. If you lack self-confidence, you can do hundreds of things to overcome such a trait. Some of the best ways are included in our booklet, "How You, Too, Can Be Popular." Sent at cost, 15 cents (coin only), plus gam, care of the News-Star.

self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Apparently yes, if education indicates intelligence. In the United States up to 1940, American women from 30 to 34 years old and with from none to 8 years of schooling had 80 percent more children than high school and college graduates. In Sweden, as education progresses, the birth rate increases: the opposite is true in the United States. Some evidence indicates we may be changing slowly for the better.

RUSTON, April 18. (Special)—Charles P. Taft, son of the 27th president of the United States and brother of Senator Bob Taft, will speak in Howard auditorium on Louisiana Tech campus, Monday, April 20 at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. to the members of the Louisiana Tech Concert association and the public, this being the last number on the current season series of the L. Dr. Brearley To Be Speaker At Workshop

Principal speaker at all three sessions of the Sociology conference and workshop at Northeast State on April 24 and 25 will be Dr. H. C. Brearley, professor of educational sociology at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn. A large group of persons from all points in Louisiana will attend the conference, the first of its kind to be held at the local college. Representatives and leaders from the fields of sociology, religion, education, social science and government will attend the conference during the scheduled two days.

A recent president of the Southern Sociological Society, Dr. Brearley is now a member of that organization's executive committee. He also holds membership in the American Sociological Society and Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity.

He is the author of a number of articles in various social science publications and has written a book, entitled "Homicide in the United States," published by the University of North Carolina Press in 1932.

Dr. Brearley studied at the School of Economics in London in 1937 and 1938 after receiving his Ph. D. degree from the University of North Carolina. He has held positions at the University of South Carolina, the South Carolina board of public welfare, Clemson A and M. College and has been professor of educational sociology at Peabody since 1939.

Dr. Brearley will be the main speaker at three sessions of the conference, the first of which will take place at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 24, the second on Saturday, April 25 at 9:30 a.m. and the third on the same day at 1:30 p.m.

Teachers who attend the conference and workshop may obtain one semester hour of college credit by registering before 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, according to Dr. W. R. Hammond, head of the department of liberal arts and social sciences at Northeast State.

1. ARE WOMEN SCHOOL TEACHERS MORE LIKELY TO BECOME NEUROTIC THAN OTHER WOMEN?
YES ☐ NO ☐ 4-18

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Probably, but a study by J. L. Malloch did not find any decisive difference. However, in "several good school systems" psychologist Norman Fenton found that approximately one out of four were "maladjusted." The National Education Association says that "such teachers exert a bad mental influence on children and should not be allowed to remain in the classroom." It's a wonder to me all school teachers don't go crazy because of their low salaries and the demands of children, parents, School Boards, etc.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. One habit alone will not do it, but the development of many will improve your personality. If you lack self-confidence, you can do hundreds of things to overcome such a trait. 3. Apparently yes, if education indicates intelligence. In the United States up to 1940, American women from 30 to 34 years old and with from none to 8 years of schooling had 80 percent more children than high school and college graduates. In Sweden, as education progresses, the birth rate increases; the opposite is true in the United States. Some evidence indicates we may be changing slowly for the better.

Girls Will Greet Prisoners Freed By Communists

WASHINGTON, April 18 (Special)—When UN sick and wounded prisoners of war begin to cross over into friendly territory next Monday, they will be greeted by something most of them haven't seen in many months—a group of American girls.

Prominent in UN plans for care of the returnees are six American Red Cross girls who will distribute comfort articles and reading material to the men as soon as they reach Freedom Village.

In the exchange area proper, Red Cross Field Director Jim Hudson of Fort Smith, Ark., will give each released POW his first pack of American cigarettes since capture.

The Red Cross field workers are especially assigned to the POW operation in Freedom Village. Two girls also have been assigned to the 45th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital on the scene. Other Red Cross workers will provide additional service to the men in Tokyo hospitals.

Plans are complete to provide a free telephone call or 50-word cable home for each American POW. Dirty bags will be given to all UN personnel, including South Koreans. Each bag contains tooth paste, a toothbrush, a razor and blades, shaving cream, a pocket comb, soap, a sewing kit, chewing gum, stationery, and a box of tissues.

Current magazines for American POWs to read an route to Tokyo include copies of Time, Life and Readers Digest donated by the publishers.

The Red Cross explained that there may be a delay of one to two days between press publication of the returnee's name and his telephone call or cable home, since each man will have to be cleared medically before being allowed to communicate directly with his family.

Calls will be made between 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m., Tokyo time, to avoid interrupting returnees' sleep. They will be received in the U. S. between 3:00 p.m. and 8:00 a.m. Special phone lines will be run to the patient's bedside if that is necessary. For the men sending cables, Red Cross Motor Service volunteers will rush the messages to telegraph offices as soon as they are written.

The Big Hour Has Arrived

Thousands of American families will be glued to their radios and newspapers tonight and this coming week as the Communists release their few prisoners to return home. It is reported that only 120 Americans are among the group to return at this point. God willing, the remainder of the prisoners will someday soon return to their loved ones and their nation. There are folks right here in Monroe and West Monroe who will scan the lists of returned POWs to see if their relatives are somehow fortunate enough to be included on those lists. It is fervently hoped that they will meet success or at least get some word that those who are in POW camps from this area are alive and well.

Nobody knows why the Communists do not have more prisoners to release now, but it is apparent that they have refused to send more Americans home at this hour. It is certain that 120 American lads are worth more than all the Communists put together the world over, and the whole nation awaits these heroes on their homecoming. Perhaps, at a later hour, the remainder will be released to come to the homes they never should have had to leave. Now is not the time for belated comment on the reasons for their going. Those reasons are well known. Now is the time to thank almighty God for the return of these few Americans and to pray that through his divine power, the rest of the brave American and other allied prisoners will be returned to the families and the lands they love. Perhaps God, in his infinite mercy, can bring peace to this war torn world at war and end the slaughter of young Americans and other men. The big hour has nearly arrived and all America awaits its returning heroes.

The 'Grand Old Party' In Ouachita

The Republicans are here! If this fact was not evident before, it is certainly evident now. Thursday night was the first meeting of the new Northeast Louisiana Republican Club. There has been for some time, a growing number of Republicans on the registrar's list and these Republicans, enthusiastic over the great victory of their candidate Eisenhower, have become encouraged and have decided to organize in this area. This is a sign of the healthiest sort which can have excellent effects in the future.

It is known that a two-party system is a healthy one and one which works for the public interest. This is not to say that the Democratic party has not in the past done a good job in the South, but it may be that in the future, the Republicans can do even better. For many, many years, the actions of the Republicans after the war for states' rights (erroneously termed "the Civil War") were held against them. They should have been. Had President Lincoln lived, the excellent spirit which he showed the South might have had far different effects than the actions and the spirit of the "black Republicans" who were no better than tyrants and who attempted to make of the prostrate south, a captured territory. These actions have rightfully never been forgotten, but today, the Southern people deal with a far different GOP and one which has proved itself as working for the betterment of all the American people. That war of nearly a hundred years ago should be forgotten as the actions of those old Republicans are actions of the past. Even those actions were not representative of the Republican party as a whole, but only those of a few radicals who controlled the party at the time. History records that there were quite a few Southern Democrats among those who traveled South with their carpetbags. In any case, that's all history and should be treated as such.

The Democrats of Louisiana have nothing to fear if they can continue to put superior candidates in the field, but if they run inferior men, this will be a mandate for a victory by the Republicans. Actually, the past five Democratic administrations have of a certainty, worked against the South. In control of those administrations were men who regarded the South as "a problem." Truman did not like the actions and politics of the South and said so upon occasion. The "liberal" or leftist wing of the Democratic party composed of men such as Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., of New York, Hubert Humphries, of Minnesota, and Paul Douglas, of Illinois, attempted to throw out of the convention in Chicago, the Southern delegates. Freight rates have been direct discrimination against the South, and were upheld by the administrations of Roosevelt and Truman. Actually, the South has very little in common with the present leadership of the Democrats while it has a great deal in common with the Republicans of this modern day.

Many Democrats running for office scoff the GOP with the usual statement "don't forget what your grandpa did." This is an insult to the intelligence of the Southern people today as it is known that the Southerners of yesterday were men of great principle as they are today and would have never supported the platform of a centralized Social state as was advocated and upheld by the past five Democratic administrations. Grandpa would never have sold out his Southland and America to a foreign nation as did the members, some of them, in the modern Democratic party. Times change, and politics change with them.

The American people, millions of Southerners included, voted the corrupt Democrats out of national office last year and the same thing will happen to the local Democrats should they also become corrupt. Instead of simply having two separate factions inside the Democratic party, the Southern people are in great numbers turning to the Republican party for new candidates. To be sure, not many of them have been elected this far South, but times are changing and so are people. Americans have always been people who would seek the best "deal" and they are apparently seeking a better deal under Republican leadership. The Southern people are not excluded.

The Republicans can be a major force in Southern politics only if and when they put into the election battles superior candidates. Why should thinking Southerners vote out good public officials? The Republican party has a long "road to hoe" and the going will be of the "roughest" type, but if that party can put in good candidates and high caliber men, the GOP has a chance in the South. The very fact that they are a threat will most likely help the people of the South because the Democratic party will always be enforced to run the best possible men for public office. On the local scene, the Republicans are welcome and time only will tell of their success, however, that success will of a certainty be determined by the caliber of candidates which the local GOP runs for political office.

The President Issues A Challenge

President Eisenhower, in one of the best speeches of his entire career, stung the Russian leaders into confusion and partially regained the initiative in the cold war for the U. S. on Thursday when he called for action, not oratory on the part of the Soviets. Speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the President designed his hard-hitting speech to counter the "peace" offensive of the Russian leaders. He said that the Russian people obviously want peace as much as any other peoples and as such, they can't be blamed for the actions of their leaders.

The President said very correctly that the end of an era came with the death of Stalin and that the new Russian government was clearly responsible for the fate of that nation everafterward. He said that he believed that if the Soviet leaders truthfully wanted peace they would consent to a unified Korea, the cessation of hostilities in Indo-China and Malaya, that they would agree to a complete treaty for the Austrian nation, a unification of Germany and that they would help in the creation of a peaceful European community with the guaranteed independence of the Eastern European nations.

The President put the Soviets behind the proverbial "eight ball" when he asserted that the U. S. is determined to seize this chance for peace and should peace not come, the world would no longer be in doubt as to who ruined the chances for peace. "There are actually no problems which are insoluble if the rights of nations are respected," were his words in a most astute analysis of the present world conditions. However, the main theme of the speech concerned the President's idea to help the impoverished and the needy with the money saved on arms and ammunition manufacture. It is his idea that the majority of the world's people don't want war. It is sincerely felt that he is correct in this assumption.

Wouldn't it be nice if all the money which was spent by Americans, British, French, Egyptians, Russians, Germans, everybody, all over the world, was put into, perhaps the research for the elimination of cancer, or some other disease? Wouldn't it be nice if that cash was spent to rebuild the shattered cities all over the world. "Each bullet fired," asserted the President, "costs the needy." That is money which could of a certainty, be put to better use.

The President has put the Russians on the spot and he is on record. It is up to them to make the decision. If they really want peace, this nation will certainly cooperate with them. It is necessary to stop the manufacture of the atomic weapon if there is to really be peace, however, that cannot be accomplished without international inspection. That international inspection cannot be done through the "U. N." even though that is the "official" agency of international intercourse. The "U. N." under its present charter is unworkable and even if the Russians were to start complete cooperation tomorrow, there are nations not represented in that body which should be there if it is to be a "true" world organization.

This speech of the President was a direct challenge to the Reds to end the cold war and restore the peace. The world is awaiting their decision and it is clearly up to them. It is only the Soviet Union which can help the world disarm, establish a sound security and end the poverty in the world. If the Russians agree with the President and start to cooperate on a full scale disarmament program, lift the dread iron curtain and show that they mean business, a golden age of peace can surely result. The alternative was clearly outlined by the President. That would be atomic destruction and terror on a scale never before seen in the world. Only time will tell.

The President has issued the challenge.

Peace can result should the Russians accept it.

A Symphony Orchestra For Monroe

There are some citizens of great public spirit in this area who are now planning to organize a symphony orchestra in this area. For those who sometimes say "there is no culture in Monroe," the answer is in this idea. There are many towns and cities of this size which support a symphony orchestra and the townspeople have gained by a great degree from such an inception. The neighboring city of Shreveport has a symphony and it is well attended. There is no reason for this area's not being included in the growing list of communities which are, at present, supporting such organizations.

The symphony would be composed mostly of local talent (there is much of that in this area, you know) and after several years, would be self sustaining. The plan for the first year is to have various citizens and businesses support the organization until it can "get on its own feet." The symphony plans to start with forty pieces and will continue to build itself into a complete orchestra with numerous pieces of each section. The group organizing the symphony plans to hold the first concert on the second of May and it is estimated that the first year will cost approximately two thousand dollars. In this growing community, that is money well spent. The advent of a symphony orchestra is good news for this area and in reality, signifies the growth of the Twin Cities.

The symphony should have the backing of all public spirited citizens.

Perhaps the best wish nowadays is for "pleasant dreams." Awakening, a man is likely to see too many unpleasant possibilities.

The Washington Parade

By Peter Edson

WASHINGTON —(NEA)—When the Truman administration's $11 billion military budget for next year was tossed back at the Department of Defense by the Eisenhower administration, with instructions to cut it back to essentials, one of the younger staff officers who had worked on the original estimates sighed wearily and said:

"Well, I guess the first thing to do is get the Republican definition of an 'essential'."

To date, this definition has never been put in writing. But program by program, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and his new Pentagon team have been cutting back manpower requirements and forcing reductions wherever they could. Best guess now is that the defense budget for the year beginning next July 1 will be cut by at least 10 per cent, or over $4 billion.

Assistant Secretary of Defense W. J. McNeill—an ex-admiral who has been kept over on the job of comptroller of the armed services by the new administration—was proud of the original 1954 budget than any prepared since unification was begun.

When this budget was announced early in January, McNeill declared that there had been real service cooperation in its preparation. Nobody had raised a loud voice to protest over any decision. And for the first time there had been real consideration of the possibility of buying too much or too many of some 800 major items, led by tanks and trucks.

The size of the budget was determined not on the basis of how much money they thought they could get from Congress, or what the taxpayers would stand for. Instead, the first determination was how big an armed force the country had to maintain at home and abroad.

Then they started figuring what it would cost to keep this force in being, with a reserve of all supplies needed for a full year of all-out war.

The size of the armed forces—a maximum of 3,700,000 men in all services—had been set by Congress before. Translated, that was enough manpower for a Navy of 400 combat vessels, 77 Naval air squadrons, three divisions of Marines and three Marine air wings; an Army of 20 divisions plus 18 combat teams, the National Guard and the reserves; an Air Force now over 100 wings, to be increased gradually to 143.

The number of bases, camps and schools to be operated for this force was determined and the cost of their maintenance added up. The degree of modernization was decided on to find what equipment replacement costs would be.

This took into account such things as the fact that combat planes wear out in from three to five years, even when they're not in combat. The number of hours these planes could be flown for training purposes had to be determined, and the cost estimated.

All these and a lot more calculations like them are what really determined the size of next year's military budget.

The important point about cutting this budget is that any cuts mean some of these things won't get done, and there will be that much less national defense.

As of July 1, 1953, the Department of Defense estimates it will have a credit of some $2 billion in the Treasury—unspent but largely obligated for future spending. For next year an additional $41 billion of new spending authority was asked in January.

Originally, the services expected to write checks for about $43 billion worth of military pay, subsistence and supplies in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954. This would leave an unspent credit of $60 billion as of July 1, 1954.

Secretary Wilson points out you can't save money by cutting a credit for money not yet appropriated. Nevertheless, these large carryovers have been the special targets for congressional economy knife-throwers.

The fact that it takes a long time to tool up a factory and get into mass production on a new model plane, tank, gun or guided missile is what makes these carryover credits necessary. If the holdovers are cut back, it simply means that there will be fewer weapons available in the future than there would be otherwise.

Secretary Wilson has been polishing off plans to cut back on the defense production base. This means that a number of standby arms plants that have been running at less than peak capacity will be closed down entirely. Others will be put into full production, to cut down unit and total costs.

This will be a complete change from the defense production policies of C. E. Wilson, the former defense mobilization director.

But this whole subject of how broad a defense production base would be needed in case of all-out war is still undecided. Harold Vance of Studebaker ran a survey on it last year and came up with the answer that the presently planned base was far too small. His report was that it might take $2 billion or more in new plants. There's only half a billion for that in the Truman budget.

In Hollywood

By Jimmy Fidler

HOLLYWOOD, April 18 — I have just returned from a colorful trip to a place called Somewhere in South America, high in the Cordilleras, better known as the Andes. Among Hollywood friends patronizing an exotic bazaar in a romantic village were Robert Mitchum and Linda Darnell, extremely well known movie stars. Also round about was Rudy Mate, a celebrated film director, and believe it or not, a battery of cameramen and more than 200 extras, all from Hollywood town.

I wandered into this remarkable setting, with the impressive Andean background, while trekking through the RKO Studios on Gower Street in Hollywood. A big fiesta was in progress and music the South American way was being played. Members of the orchestra were arrayed in serapes, funny little jackets, striped pants and a variety of colors. The girls were all dressed up, just like you find in South America, especially in some remote village — and there were Indians around. And I heard it whispered that many were descendants of the fabulous Incas of Pizarro's days as chief conquistadors of Peru.

Bob Mitchum seemed to be just traveling through, but interested in Miss Darnell who was quite interested in the bazaar.

So it is, as I have so often said, when you find yourself on the huge stages and sets of the big studios. The world in all its widespread glory, or shame, or beauty, is there for the wayfarer. Over the recent months I have traveled through the Gobi Desert, the South Seas, Africa, Europe, Hawaii, the High Rockies, through prisons, palaces and across the prairies, into Mexico, out of Mexico — and all over — just by visiting the movie studios. This particular picture is titled "Second Chance" with the scenes laid somewhere "below the border."

I have been watching with some concern for her health, the strenuous harrow-scarom working schedule of Rosemary Clooney. Not since the heyday of Judy Garland has any young singer so completely captivated movie audiences as Rosemary has done. I've heard, not once, but many times — and from those whose opinions mean much to me — that Miss Clooney is destined to become one of the greatest stars in show business. I hope she can avoid the mistakes of some to whom success has been as much a tragedy as a triumph — her health. Within the past few months, Miss Clooney has flown back and forth between here and New York no fewer than five times. During that period she has made approximately 100 personal appearances, granted dozens of magazine and newspaper interviews, and recorded new phonograph records. I would say to Miss Clooney: slow down. It's the groundwork she lays today that will determine her future success and happiness.

Ever since the recent Academy Awards shindig, Hollywood, and millions of people who watched the show on television, have talked of little else but Janet Gaynor. Despite the fact that she long since retired from the screen, she completely stole the show from the "glamour queens" in the audience. I think the answer is simple. She has kept the public's respect. At no time in her long career did she ever stoop to the cheap, sexy publicity which so many actresses seem to feel is essential to success. Janet Gaynor was applauded, not for her beauty, but for that wholesome thing in life which she so graciously represents — respectability, the quality that gives any personality lasting stature. If Miss Gaynor never makes another public appearance, she performed a great service to Hollywood by taking part in this year's Academy Awards.

The Big Hour Has Arrived

Thousands of American families will be glued to their radios and newspapers tonight and this coming week as the Communists release their few prisoners to return home. It is reported that only 120 Americans are among the group to return at this point. God willing, the remainder of the prisoners will someday soon return to their loved ones and their nation. There are folks right here in Monroe and West Monroe who will scan the lists of returned POWs to see if their relatives are somehow fortunate enough to be included on those lists. It is fervently hoped that they will meet success or at least get some word that those who are in POW camps from this area are alive and well.

Nobody knows why the Communists do not have more prisoners to release now, but it is apparent that they have refused to send more Americans home at this hour. It is certain that 120 American lads are worth more than all the Communists put together the world over, and the whole nation awaits these heroes on their homcoming. Perhaps, at a later hour, the remainder will be released to come to the homes they never should have had to leave. Now is not the time for belated comment on the reasons for their going. Those reasons are well known. Now is the time to thank almighty God for the return of these few Americans and to pray that through his divine power, the rest of the brave American and other allied prisoners will be returned to the families and the lands they love. Perhaps God, in his infinite mercy, can bring peace to this war torn world at war and end the slaughter of young Americans and other men. The big hour has nearly arrived and all America awaits its returning heroes.

The 'Grand Old Party' In Ouachita

The Republicans are here! If this fact was not evident before, it is certainly evident now. Thursday night was the first meeting of the new Northeast Louisiana Republican Club. There has been for some time, a growing number of Republicans on the registrar's list and these Republicans, enthusiastic over the great victory of their candidate Eisenhower, have become encouraged and have decided to organize in this area. This is a sign of the healthiest sort which can have excellent effects in the future.

It is known that a two-party system is a healthy one and one which works for the public interest. This is not to say that the Democratic party has not in the past done a good job in the South, but it may be that in the future, the Republicans can do even better. For many, many years, the actions of the Republicans after the war for states' rights (erroneously termed "the Civil War") were held against them. They should have been. Had President Lincoln lived, the excellent spirit which he showed the South might have had far different effects than the actions and the spirit of the "black Republicans" who were no better than tyrants and who attempted to make of the prostrate south, a captured territory. These actions have rightfully never been forgotten, but today, the Southern people deal with a far different GOP and one which has proved itself as working for the betterment of all the American people. That war of nearly a hundred years ago should be forgotten as the actions of those old Republicans are actions of the past. Even those actions were not representative of the Republican party as a whole, but only those of a few radicals who controlled the party at the time. History records that there were quite a few Southern Democrats among those who traveled South with their carpetbags. In any case, that's all history and should be treated as such.

The Democrats of Louisiana have nothing to fear if they can continue to put superior candidates in the field, but if they run inferior men, this will be a mandate for a victory by the Republicans. Actually, the past five Democratic administrations have of a certainty, worked against the South. In control of those administrations were men who regarded the South as "a problem." Truman did not like the actions and politics of the South and said so upon occasion. The "liberal" or leftist wing of the Democratic party composed of men such as Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., of New York, Hubert Humphries, of Minnesota, and Paul Douglas, of Illinois, attempted to throw out of the convention in Chicago, the Southern delegates. Freight rates have been direct discrimination against the South, and were upheld by the administrations of Roosevelt and Truman. Actually, the South has very little in common with the present leadership of the Democrats while it has a great deal in common with the Republicans of this modern day.

Many Democrats running for office scoff the GOP with the usual statement "don't forget what your grandpa did." This is an insult to the intelligence of the Southern people today as it is known that the Southerners of yesterday were men of great principle as they are today and would have never supported the platform of a centralized Social state as was advocated and upheld by the past five Democratic administrations. Grandpa would never have sold out his Southland and America to a foreign nation as did the members, some of them, in the modern Democratic party. Times change, and politics change with them.

The American people, millions of Southerners included, voted the corrupt Democrats out of national office last year and the same thing will happen to the local Democrats should they also become corrupt. Instead of simply having two separate factions inside the Democratic party, the Southern people are in great numbers turning to the Republican party for new candidates. To be sure, not many of them have been elected this far South, but times are changing and so are people. Americans have always been people who would seek the best "deal" and they are apparently seeking a better deal under Republican leadership. The Southern people are not excluded.

The Republicans can be a major force in Southern politics only if and when they put into the election battles superior candidates. Why should thinking Southerners vote out good public officials? The Republican party has a long "road to hoe" and the going will be of the "roughest" type, but if that party can put in good candidates and high caliber men, the GOP has a chance in the South. The very fact that they are a threat will most likely help the people of the South because the Democratic party will always be enforced to run the best possible men for public office. On the local scene, the Republicans are welcome and time only will tell of their success, however, that success will of a certainty be determined by the caliber of candidates which the local GOP runs for political office.

The President Issues A Challenge

President Eisenhower, in one of the best speeches of his entire career, stung the Russian leaders into confusion and partially regained the initiative in the cold war for the U. S. on Thursday when he called for action, not oratory on the part of the Soviets. Speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the President designed his hard-hitting speech to counter the "peace" offensive of the Russian leaders. He said that the Russian people obviously want peace as much as any other peoples and as such, they can't be blamed for the actions of their leaders.

The President said very correctly that the end of an era came with the death of Stalin and that the new Russian government was clearly responsible for the fate of that nation everafterward. He said that he believed that if the Soviet leaders truthfully wanted peace they would consent to a unified Korea, the cessation of hostilities in Indo-China and Malaya, that they would agree to a complete treaty for the Austrian nation, a unification of Germany and that they would help in the creation of a peaceful European community with the guaranteed independence of the Eastern European nations.

The President put the Soviets behind the proverbial "eight ball" when he asserted that the U. S. is determined to seize this chance for peace and should peace not come, the world would no longer be in doubt as to who ruined the chances for peace. "There are actually no problems which are insoluble if the rights of nations are respected," were his words in a most astute analysis of the present world conditions. However, the main theme of the speech concerned the President's idea to help the impoverished and the needy with the money saved on arms and ammunition manufacture. It is his idea that the majority of the world's people don't want war. It is sincerely felt that he is correct in this assumption.

Wouldn't it be nice if all the money which was spent by Americans, British, French, Egyptians, Russians, Germans, everybody, all over the world, was put into, perhaps the research for the elimination of cancer, or some other disease? Wouldn't it be nice if that cash was spent to rebuild the shattered cities all over the world. "Each bullet fired," asserted the President, "costs the needy." That is money which could of a certainty, be put to better use.

The President has put the Russians on the spot and he is on record. It is up to them to make the decision. If they really want peace, this nation will certainly cooperate with them. It is necessary to stop the manufacture of the atomic weapon if there is to really be peace, however, that cannot be accomplished without international inspection. That international inspection cannot be done through the "U. N." even though that is the "official" agency of international intercourse. The "U. N." under its present charter is unworkable and even if the Russians were to start complete cooperation tomorrow, there are nations not represented in that body which should be there if it is to be a "true" world organization.

This speech of the President was a direct challenge to the Reds to end the cold war and restore the peace. The world is awaiting their decision and it is clearly up to them. It is only the Soviet Union which can help the world disarm, establish a sound security and end the poverty in the world. If the Russians agree with the President and start to cooperate on a full scale disarmament program, lift the dread iron curtain and show that they mean business, a golden age of peace can surely result. The alternative was clearly outlined by the President. That would be atomic destruction and terror on a scale never before seen in the world. Only time will tell.

The President has issued the challenge.

Peace can result should the Russians accept it.

A Symphony Orchestra For Monroe

There are some citizens of great public spirit in this area who are now planning to organize a symphony orchestra in this area. For those who sometimes say "there is no culture in Monroe," the answer is in this idea. There are many towns and cities of this size which support a symphony orchestra and the townspeople have gained by a great degree from such an inception. The neighboring city of Shreveport has a symphony and it is well attended. There is no reason for this area's not being included in the growing list of communities which are, at present, supporting such organizations.

The symphony would be composed mostly of local talent (there is much of that in this area, you know) and after several years, would be self sustaining. The plan for the first year is to have various citizens and businesses support the organization until it can "get on its own feet." The symphony plans to start with forty pieces and will continue to build itself into a complete orchestra with numerous pieces of each section. The group organizing the symphony plans to hold the first concert on the second of May and it is estimated that the first year will cost approximately two thousand dollars. In this growing community, that is money well spent. The advent of a symphony orchestra is good news for this area and in reality, signifies the growth of the Twin Cities.

The symphony should have the backing of all public spirited citizens.

Perhaps the best wish nowadays is for "pleasant dreams." Awakening, a man is likely to see too many unpleasant possibilities.

The Same Problem Has Clouded Many Another

The Washington Parade

WASHINGTON (NEA)—When the Truman administration's $41 billion military budget for next year was tossed back at the Department of Defense by the Eisenhower administration, with instructions to cut it back to essentials, one of the younger staff officers who had worked on the original estimates sighed wearily and said:

"Well, I guess the first thing to do is get the Republican definition of an 'essential'."

To date, this definition has never been put in writing. But program by program, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and his new Pentagon team have been cutting back manpower requirements and forcing reductions wherever they could. Best guess now is that the defense budget for the year beginning next July 1 will be cut by at least 10 per cent, or over $4 billion.

Assistant Secretary of Defense W. J. McNeill—an ex-admiral who has been kept over on the job of comptroller of the armed services by the new administration—was proud of the original 1954 budget than any prepared since unification was begun.

When this budget was announced early in January, McNeill declared that there had been real service cooperation in its preparation. Nobody had raised a loud voice to protest over any decision. And for the first time there had been real consideration of the possibility of buying too much or too many of some 800 major items, led by tanks and trucks.

The size of the budget was determined not on the basis of how much money they thought they could get from Congress, or what the taxpayers would stand for. Instead, the first determination was how big an armed force the country had to maintain at home and abroad.

Then they started figuring what it would cost to keep this force in being, with a reserve of all supplies needed for a full year of all-out war.

The size of the armed forces—a maximum of 3,700,000 men in all services—had been set by Congress before. Translated, that was enough manpower for a Navy of 400 combat vessels, 77 Naval air squadrons, three divisions of Marines and three Marine air wings; an Army of 20 divisions plus 18 combat teams; the National Guard and the reserves; an Air Force now over 100 wings, to be increased gradually to 143.

The number of bases, camps and schools to be operated for this force was determined and the cost of their maintenance added up. The degree of modernization was decided on to find what equipment replacement costs would be.

This took into account such things as the fact that combat planes wear out in from three to five years, even when they're not in combat. The number of hours these planes could be flown for training purposes had to be determined, and the cost estimated.

All these and a lot more calculations like them are what really determined the size of next year's military budget.

The important point about cutting this budget is that any cuts mean some of these things won't get done, and there will be that much less national defense.

As of July 1, 1953, the Department of Defense estimates it will have a credit of some $2 billion in the Treasury—unspent but largely obligated for future spending. For next year an additional $41 billion of new spending authority was asked in January.

Originally, the services expected to write checks for about $43 billion worth of military pay, subsistence and supplies in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954. This would leave an unspent credit of $60 billion as of July 1, 1954.

Secretary Wilson points out you can't save money by cutting a credit for money not yet appropriated. Nevertheless, these large carryovers have been the special targets for congressional economy knife-throwers.

The fact that it takes a long time to tool up a factory and get into mass production on a new model plane, tank, gun or guided missile is what makes these carryover credits necessary. If the holdovers are cut back, it simply means that there will be fewer weapons available in the future than there would be otherwise.

Secretary Wilson has been polishing off plans to cut back on the defense production base. This means that a number of stand-by arms plants that have been running at less than peak capacity will be closed down entirely. Others will be put into full production, to cut down unit and total costs.

This will be a complete change from the defense production policies of C. E. Wilson, the former defense mobilization director.

But this whole subject of how broad a defense production base would be needed in case of all-out war is still undecided. Harold Vance of Studebaker ran a survey on it last year and came up with the answer that the presently planned base was far too small. His report was that it might take $2 billion or more in new plants. There's only half a billion for that in the Truman budget.

Winnsboro Will Vote On 2 Bond Issues May 26

WINNSBORO, April 18. (Special)—The board of aldermen have called a special election for May 26, on two bond issues totaling $450,000 for the purpose of increased water facilities and expanded fire protection for the town of Winnsboro.

At the election, resident property-owning taxpayers will vote on two propositions, for $25,000 each. One proposition will provide funds for construction of a new water treatment plant, new water wells, and the extension of existing water mains and water service in Winnsboro. The other $225,000 will be used for construction of an elevated water tank, a ground storage reservoir, installation of fire hydrants, large water mains and fire pumps for fire protection, and the purchase of a necessary site upon which to locate the facilities.

Mayor Robert F. Mulhearn said "As the public knows, Winns-boro's water system is entirely inadequate for both supply of water and for fire protection. But, one thing the board of aldermen and I wish to stress is that, because of legal reasons, the improvements have been broken into two separate proposals. Neither of the propositions will be of substantial benefit to the public if the other fails. Therefore, for the public to be consistent, the voter will either approve or disapprove both issues."

Due to the lack of proper filters and equipment for treating the water, water now reaches the consumers in such bad condition that many homes and business establishments have installed individual water softeners. According to Mayor Mulhearn and the board of aldermen, the proposed new treatment plant will not only remove the iron and manganese from the water, which causes "red water" and staining, but will also provide for softening the water.

Walnut Creek In Homecoming Set On Sunday

SIMSBORO, La., April 18 (Special)—The Walnut Creek Baptist Church, two miles west of this town will have a homecoming day on April 26—fourth Sunday in April.

After lunch a cemetery committee will be named to solicit funds for the improvement of the cemetery. All who are interested in the church and cemetery are urged to attend, bringing their noon lunch with them.

Baton Rouge Bond Issue Vote Is Set

BATON ROUGE, La.—East Baton Rouge Parish property owners go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a 12½ million dollar bond issue to finance expansion of their public school system.

In an appeal to voters today, school board officials called on voters to end the "two-platoon system" of holding classes in shifts to relieve overcrowded classroom conditions.

The program will require an additional minimum levy of two mills, or two dollars per $1,000 assessment.

Plans call for expansion of facilities in the metropolitan and rural areas for both white and Negro children. The bond issue will be used to construct new buildings and playgrounds and to expand and renovate existing plants.

State Polio Rate Shows Decrease During Past Week

NEW ORLEANS, April 18.—U.P.—There were no new polio cases reported in Louisiana for the week ending April 16 as compared with three the week before, the State Department of Health said Saturday.

Thus far there have been 17 cases of paralytic polio in the state this year, a sharp decrease under the rate for the corresponding period last year.

The report, however, noted a sharp increase in cancer and chickenpox cases. In the latest report there were 93 new cancer cases as compared to 19 the previous week, and 27 new cases of chickenpox as compared to 19 also the week before.

Thus far this year there have been 760 cases of cancer reported for the state and 401 cases of chickenpox.

Big Joint Meet Is Arranged For American Legion

An interesting meeting has been planned for the members of L. B. Faulk Post No. 13, American Legion, at 7:30 p.m. Monday night, at the Legion home in Forsythe Park.

The Legion, nationally, is observing the month of April as child welfare month, and so Monday's meeting has been planned in observance of this Legion activity. Chairman Charles Mitchell has arranged for a joint meeting of the Legion, the ladies of the auxiliary, as well as the wives of all members, to attend a real program he has planned for Monday night's meeting.

In addition to this, Boys Scout Chairman Alex Lea has arranged for a charter presentation to the Explorer group of Boy Scouts sponsored by L. B. Faulk Post No. 13, and the boys of this troop have been invited to attend.

Commander Orchard has arranged for all boys who were selected in 1952 to attend Pelican Boys' State, which was cancelled on account of the polio epidemic in our state, to attend this meeting and be presented with Boys' State Keys. These boys are: Ronnie Marrioneaux, Gilbert Vascon, Norman L. Waddell, Frank Scollin, Billy Blazer, Donnie Mathys, Harry Petty, Ralph Troy, Charles Edwin Coe, Sam Danna, Ralph Thomas Norman, Vincent Marsala, Jr., W. A. Bradshaw, Clyde Fulton and Walter A. Bennett, Jr.

Final plans for opening night of the Cotton State's League Baseball season in Monroe on the night of April 21 will be discussed by the post. It is hoped to have at least 250 Legionnaires with caps attend this game in a body, in recognition of the opening of the 1953 baseball season in Monroe at the American Legion Memorial Baseball Park.

And to finish up a pleasant evening, food chairman, John Bailey and his committee, have arranged to serve supper immediately following this meeting.

Commander Orchard, and the other officers of the post, urge all members to be present and enjoy an evening of good fellowship.

Why Grow Old?

ing, this lunch is suggested.

As a guide to vital eating which will not be fattening.

Since my Eight Week Self-Improvement Marathon and my Nine Day Reducing Diet have run recently in this column, tens of thousands of women in this country are slimmer than they were before the first of the year.

They are also interested in knowing how to eat in order to keep their weight where it is now. I have already written one column about this in which I suggested that you add from 300 to 500 calories to your daily food intake, and watch the scales.

I also suggested that you use your reducing diet as a guide to vital eating, which will not be fattening. Today I am going to give you sample menus for a day.

BREAKFAST
One half grapefruit
One poached egg on whole wheat toast
Coffee (one teaspoonful of sugar)

LUNCHEON
One large tomato or two smaller ones
One-third of a head of lettuce
Three tablespoons of cottage cheese

One tablespoonful French dressing
One piece of whole wheat bread
One glass of skimmed milk

MID AFTERNOON
One glass of orange or tomato juice

DINNER

Two medium slices of lean meat (beef steak or roast or lamb or broiled liver or ham)

One cup of greens or spinach or any green or yellow vegetable
One roll
One baked potato
A green salad with one tablespoonful dressing
Fresh fruit cup
One glass of skimmed milk before retiring

It is easy to see that nobody will starve on this sort of a diet, and neither will she become obese. And, you will not even be hungry when eating in this way. These menus give you the number of calories the average woman requires. Think how very much more than this most women eat!

You can add to this diet, two tablespoons of butter to be distributed as you wish. Naturally, once in a while you can add gravy to your meat, exotic sauces to your vegetables, and have your potatoes au gratin, and enjoy a dessert, but I am giving you the plan which should be your usual habit.

Remember too, that the way in which you prepare your food makes a great difference. Bake or broil, don't fry! This plus the "trimmings" makes the difference between overweight and a slim figure.

Pearson, Jackson Trial To Open Monday In Jena

JENA, April 19. (Special)—Two papers of half a dozen cities, men go on trial here tomorrow Judge Mousser ordered that the charged with the murder on Feb. 24, 1952 of 21-year-old Donald Floyd, son of state trooper Ullis Floyd. Luther Pearson and Martin Jackson were acquitted in January of a murder charge in connection with the death of the state trooper.

Judge Vincent M. Mousser overruled a motion by defense counsel last week asking for a change of venue because of "prejudice existing in the public mind against the two defendants, growing out of news stories published in newspapers from officers whom they claimed shot them as they were attempting to surrender after the deaths of the two Floyd's.

The state contends that Donald Floyd met his death after running to the aid of his father. The allegations state that Pearson and Jackson shot the younger Floyd after his father had fallen. The double-slaying occurred in the front yard of the Floyd home.

District Attorney C. C. Minard will present the state's case and defense counsel will be headed by Warren Hunt, of Rayville, and F. E. Flowers of Jena.

Gambling Flourishes In Madison--And Pays Off

(Editor's note: The following article is not intended to endorse nor repudiate the subject. Instead it represents an attempt to objectively report an existing situation that certainly has merits and, on the other hand, demerits.)

By FRANK NOONAN

TALLULAH, La., April 18 — Though state laws say it can't be done (legally) Madison parish caters to gambling and reaps handsome benefits—with the endorsement of some of the most prominent citizens and officials in the parish.

Operated under a seven-man commission, controlled gambling in Madison goes on without interruption from local law enforcement agencies. In fact a grand jury panel, after investigating gambling in October of last year, said "...law enforcement officials are herewith instructed to (leave the gambling situation) status quo."

Most persons connected with and favoring gambling freely admit the operation violates state laws, but they point to the right benefits the parish receives. Funds from gambling help finance such worthy projects as libraries, the annual parish fair and schools. At one time 13 new school buses were purchased with gambling profits.

The operation is conducted under the supervision of an organization known as "Associated Charities." Seven prominent Madison businessmen direct "Associated Charities."

Extensive gambling operations—slot machines and assorted card games—are flourishing in the open in Tallulah; many of them within shouting distance of the parish sheriff's office.

One-armed bandits are standard equipment in many cafes, bars, grocery stores and gas stations, and several apparently legitimate business organizations serve as fronts for gambling dens located in various sections of the thriving town which serves as seat of the Madison parish government.

Some barber shops have rooms in back where poker, rummy and blackjack games were in progress. There was nothing particularly secretive about the activities. Greenbacks in denominations ranging from one to 20 were stacked in front of the players. Bystanders are asked no questions.

In another establishment operating as a cafe, food and beer were served in front, while the cards were being dealt in an adjoining back room marked "Club Room—For Men Only."

At one such place a poker game was progressing at a lively tempo. The proprietor, eager to please his patrons, was on hand to supervise dealing of the cards.

With this setting, two waitresses probably ranging in ages from 16 to 17, took opportunity to engage in what is known as "milking the machine." They tilted two coin machines, successfully tripping the jackpots prematurely.

In many establishments waitresses and bartenders engage in "machine milking" when gamblers run out of coins.

The operator of one bar complained that he had been robbed by a group of shysters who robbed the slot machines.

"While four men pretended to feed coins into the machines," he said, "a fifth man punctured them with a hand drill, tripping the jack pots."

"We couldn't call the police when we found out what had happened," he continued, "because the machines are illegal."

Some establishments, grocery stores and cafes, have as many as six of the one-armed gadgets with insatiable appetites for coins. These will take hard money varying from a nickel to 50 cents. In prominent lettering on the devices are the guaranteed jackpot amounts.

Some pay as little as $7.50 when tripped, others promise pots of $10, $17.50, and $37.50. One gadget is on the order of a pinball machine and is called the "Daily Double."

If a gambler visiting Tallulah wishes to combine a trip to the drug store, bar and card game den, there are establishments there which house all three under the same roof.

Citizens of Tallulah have varying opinions on the flourishing gambling operations there. Some think that it is best to have such activity in the open. Others complain that it sets a bad example for the youngsters of the area.

Some of the one-armed bandits' patrons appear youthful. An estimate of some of the ages would start at 14 or 15 years.

The gaming dens of this lumber, mill and farm town of some 7,700 population, according to residents, draw some of their traffic from outlying sections of Madison parish, as well as from adjoining East Carroll parish.

No cases of hardship resulting from family bread winners engaging in excessive gambling have been reported, some residents of Tallulah say. But they speculate that a lot of money coming from resources of the area are channeled into games of chance.

Madison's primary revenue producing resources include lumber, cotton, soy beans, and commercial and registered cattle herds.

One Tallulah business man, lamenting that local law enforcement officials had made no move to close down gambling activities, expressed concern over the future of children raised in such an unwholesome environment.

As he spoke he gestured to a grass carpeted yard only a short distance from one of the gaming establishments. There a small boy romped with a black dachshund pup, against a backdrop of flowers and shrubbery.

"What about his future?" he queried.

Later, near the bus station, an elderly man stood with four boys ranging in age from one to about six. He explained to a bystander that they were his sons and were going to Monroe to visit their mother.

He distributed a small amount of spending money among the youngsters, then asked them to wait until he ran an errand. Stepping inside a cafe he fed a nickel slot machine a couple of times and retrieved about a dozen coins or so. Returning to his wards he divided the payoff.

Jet Engine Production Lag Described As Not Critical

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—A strike has cut down production of the fastest type of jet fighter engines needed for the Korean air war during the past month, but as yet the Pentagon seems unworried. The strike halted production of the General Electric Company's souped-up engine—the type supposed to make U. S. Sabre jets equal to the Russian MIG—at GE's Evendale, Ohio, plant near Cincinnati.

Asked if the walkout of 5,250 AFL and CIO workmen was reducing output of the speedy fighter engines, a Defense Department spokesman said today: "We have not lost any aircraft production yet, but if it persists a few more weeks the situation could become critical."

Inquiry about the strike's effects was prompted by reports that the Defense Department had changed its mind about the seriousness of the work stoppage.

It was learned reliably that the department first told the Federal Mediation Service the strike was critical and should be settled at all costs. Later, however, the department told the mediation service it had overstated the urgency of the strike.

Several factors are involved. One is that GE is producing some of the speedy J47-27 engines at its Lynn, Mass., plant.

Another is that the North American Aviation Company, the major producer of the finished Sabre jets, told the Air Force it has enough of the new jet engines to "last through June."

However, another government official familiar with the situation said privately it was his opinion "There would be a scandal" because the Cincinnati strike has been permitted to go this long.

The mediation service has been watching the Ohio dispute closely, but in view of the latest word from the Pentagon that no serious engine shortage had occurred as yet, it has held up plans to bring company and union representatives to high-level meetings here.

Settlement efforts at Evendale have been desultory. The GE company predicted in publications distributed to employees well ahead of the March 16 strike that a walkout would occur. The company has offered to raise pay rates from 6 to 8 cents an hour, or an average of 7 cents.

Monroe Youth Hurt In Bike-Auto Crash

A 17-year-old Monroe youth was given emergency treatment Saturday after the motorcycle on which he was riding ran into the back of an automobile at the intersection of Stubbs and North Third Streets. He was released shortly after receiving treatment.

The youth, Dan Bailey, 17, 316 Ouachita Avenue, was taken to St. Francis Sanitarium by a Mulhearn ambulance. He was treated for a bruised leg and released.

Daley was reported to have struck the rear of a 1950 Chevrolet driven by Mrs. Mary Jane Daniels, 1612 South Fourth Street, Monroe.

Mrs. Daniels told investigating officers that she stopped at the intersection of North Third and Stubbs Street. When she proceeded across North Third Street, the motorcycle, a 1952 Harley Davidson, driven by Daley ran into the back of her automobile.

No charges were filed in the accident.

He is member of the Rotary Club, Traffic Club, Memphis County Club, Tennessee Club and an elder in a Presbyterian church in Memphis.

The first real job for Mr. Lamb was as a dispatching clerk at Gulfport, Miss. for the Gulf & Ship Island Railroad at age of 15. In 1902 he was named agent for the Louisiana & Arkansas railroad and later transferred to Stamps, Ark. as train dispatcher. His first position with the Missouri Pacific was as dispatcher at McGehee, Ark. in 1906. Later he served as chief train dispatcher at Monroe and McGehee and was made trainmaster of the Memphis division in 1917.

In 1924 he was promoted to superintendent of the Southern division with headquarters at Van Buren, Ark. Until 1936, when he was made general superintendent of the Southern district with offices in Little Rock, he gained experience as superintendent of several of the road's divisions.

Gambling Flourishes In Madison--And Pays Off

(Editor's note: The following article is not intended to endorse nor repudiate the subject. Instead it represents an attempt to objectively report an existing situation that certainly has merits and, on the other hand, demerits.)

By FRANK NOONAN

TALLULAH, La., April 18 — Though state laws say it can't be done (legally) Madison parish caters to gambling and reaps handsome benefits—with the endorsement of some of the most prominent citizens and officials in the parish.

Operated under a seven-man commission, controlled gambling in Madison goes on without interruption from local law enforcement agencies. In fact a grand jury panel, after investigating gambling in October of last year, said "...law enforcement officials are herewith instructed to (leave the gambling situation) status quo."

Most persons connected with and favoring gambling freely admit the operation violates state laws, but they point to the rich benefits the parish receives. Funds from gambling help finance such worthy projects as libraries, the annual parish fair and schools. At one time 13 new school buses were purchased with gambling profits.

The operation is conducted under the supervision of an organization known as "Associated Charities." Seven prominent Madison businessmen direct "Associated Charities."

Extensive gambling operations—slot machines and assorted card games—are flourishing in the open in Tallulah; many of them within shouting distance of the parish sheriff's office.

One-armed bandits are standard equipment in many cafes, bars, grocery stores and gas stations, and several apparently legitimate business organizations serve as fronts for gambling dens located in various sections of the thriving town which serves as seat of the Madison parish government.

Some barber shops have rooms in back where poker, rummy and blackjack games were in progress. There was nothing particularly secretive about the activities. Greenbacks in denominations ranging from one to 20 were stacked in front of the players. Bystanders are asked no questions.

In another establishment operating as a cafe, food and beer were served in front, while the cards were being dealt in an adjoining back room marked "Club Room—For Men Only."

At one such place a poker game was progressing at a lively tempo. The proprietor, eager to please his patrons, was on hand to supervise dealing of the cards.

With this setting, two waitresses probably ranging in ages from 16 to 17, took opportunity to engage in what is known as "milking the machine." They tilted two coin machines, successfully tripping the jackpots prematurely.

In many establishments waitresses and bartenders engage in "machine milking" when gamblers run out of coins.

The operator of one bar complained that he had been robbed by a group of shysters who robbed the slot machines.

"While four men pretended to feed coins into the machines," he said, "a fifth man punctured them with a hand drill, tripping the jack pots."

"We couldn't call the police when we found out what had happened," he continued, "because the sheriff's office."

A Monroe man was one of four naval pilots who participated in an air show, which was recently held at Phoenix, Arizona, before approximately 50,000 persons. The naval personnel flew in support of the "Blue Angels" an acrobatic aerial team, often termed the world's outstanding group.

Kalgoorlie, Australian gold town, gets its water through a 346-mile steel pipeline.

Some establishments, grocery stores and cafes, have as many as six of the one-armed gadgets with insatiable appetites for coins. These will take hard money varying from a nickel to 50 cents. In prominent lettering on the devices are the guaranteed jackpot amounts.

Some pay as little as $7.50 when tripped, others promise pots of $10, $17.50, and $37.50. One gadget is on the order of a pinball machine and is called the "Daily Double."

If a gambler visiting Tallulah wishes to combine a trip to the drug store, bar and card game den, there are establishments there which house all three under the same roof.

Citizens of Tallulah have varying opinions on the flourishing gambling operations there. Some think that it is best to have such activity in the open. Others complain that it sets a bad example for the youngsters of the area.

Some of the one-armed bandits' patrons appear youthful. An estimate of some of the ages would start at 14 or 15 years.

The gaming dens of this lumber, mill and farm town of some 7,700 population, according to residents, draw some of their traffic from outlying sections of Madison parish, as well as from adjoining East Carroll parish.

No cases of hardship resulting from family bread winners engaging in excessive gambling have been reported, some residents of Tallulah say. But they speculate that a lot of money coming from resources of the area are channeled into games of chance.

Madison's primary revenue producing resources include lumber, cotton, soy beans, and commercial and registered cattle herds.

One Tallulah business man, lamenting that local law enforcement officials had made no move to close down gambling activities, expressed concern over the future of children raised in such an unwholesome environment.

As he spoke he gestured to a grass carpeted yard only a short distance from one of the gaming establishments. There a small boy romped with a black dachshund pup, against a backdrop of flowers and shrubbery.

"What about his future?" he queried.

Later, near the bus station, an elderly man stood with four boys ranging in age from one to about six. He explained to a bystander that they were his sons and were going to Monroe to visit their mother.

He distributed a small amount of spending money among the youngsters, then asked them to wait until he ran an errand. Stepping inside a cafe he fed a nickel slot machine a couple of times and retrieved about a dozen coins or so. Returning to his wards he divided the payoff.

Some establishments, grocery stores and cafes, have as many as six of the one-armed gadgets with insatiable appetites for coins. These will take hard money varying from a nickel to 50 cents. In prominent lettering on the devices are the guaranteed jackpot amounts.

Some pay as little as $7.50 when tripped, others promise pots of $10, $17.50, and $37.50. One gadget is on the order of a pinball machine and is called the "Daily Double."

If a gambler visiting Tallulah wishes to combine a trip to the drug store, bar and card game den, there are establishments there which house all three under the same roof.

Citizens of Tallulah have varying opinions on the flourishing gambling operations there. Some think that it is best to have such activity in the open. Others complain that it sets a bad example for the youngsters of the area.

Some of the one-armed bandits' patrons appear youthful. An estimate of some of the ages would start at 14 or 15 years.

The gaming dens of this lumber, mill and farm town of some 7,700 population, according to residents, draw some of their traffic from outlying sections of Madison parish, as well as from adjoining East Carroll parish.

No cases of hardship resulting from family bread winners engaging in excessive gambling have been reported, some residents of Tallulah say. But they speculate that a lot of money coming from resources of the area are channeled into games of chance.

Madison's primary revenue producing resources include lumber, cotton, soy beans, and commercial and registered cattle herds.

One Tallulah business man, lamenting that local law enforcement officials had made no move to close down gambling activities, expressed concern over the future of children raised in such an unwholesome environment.

As he spoke he gestured to a grass carpeted yard only a short distance from one of the gaming establishments. There a small boy romped with a black dachshund pup, against a backdrop of flowers and shrubbery.

"What about his future?" he queried.

Later, near the bus station, an elderly man stood with four boys ranging in age from one to about six. He explained to a bystander that they were his sons and were going to Monroe to visit their mother.

Guard Searches For Man Missing On Fishing Trip

NEW ORLEANS, April 18 (FHTNC)—The Coast Guard continued an air-sea search late today for a missing man who swam from a fishing boat to Horn Island to hunt pigs.

The Coast Guard Search and Rescue Station reported that footprints were found leading into the island and back to the water. But a searching party which landed on Horn Island, ten miles south of Pascagoula, Miss., in the Gulf of Mexico, was unable to locate the man, identified by the Coast Guard as James Walker of Bayou La Batre, Ala.

The tug Felicity Ann reported early today that it sighted a life jacket believed to have been worn by the man when he was dropped overboard from the fishing boat Kid late Friday. A Coast Guard patrol plane scanned the Gulf searching for the life jacket.

A 40-foot patrol boat was also searching for the life jacket, the Coast Guard added.

The Kid was to have returned to pick up Walker Friday afternoon. But when the vessel returned crew members were unable to find Walker.

The crew of the Kid said that Walker carried no weapons with him when he swam to the island.

1st Methodist Is Planning On Air Condition

All workers in the First Methodist Church air conditioning campaign met in the social room of the new educational building at 7 o'clock Friday evening for a report meeting on the progress of the financial campaign.

Bids opened last Tuesday showed that it will require $33,500 to completely air - condition the building with the system as planned by the engineers.

The campaign is getting well underway and over $8500 has been indicated in reports thus far. There are many workers yet to report, and it is believed that the campaign will proceed until completion.

All workers including division and team captains and team members, and the special gifts committee, attended the Friday night meeting, called by G. Thomas Freier, general chairman.

The committee has been asked to place tentative orders for the materials conditioned on signing a contract when the financial campaign is over, and in that way the work can be rushed to completion for this summer if it can be financed.

Rev. R. T. Williams, pastor at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe will lead the singing.

Bible Comment

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

The principal setting of the scenes and events of the New Testament, especially the Four Gospels and the life of Christ, was in Palestine.

But a broader setting involving a great part of what was then the known world became a reality as the number of disciples increased. They spread to various areas and new converts were won in many pagan cities.

The reading of the New Testament, particularly the Book of the Acts and the Epistles of Saint Paul, is made more interesting if we have some knowledge of that ancient world.

The city of Damascus, for instance, to which Paul was journeying when his conversion changed his whole life, is said to be dates back to as long before the birth of Christ as our time has been since Christ's birth. I have read that it was a city before Babylon began.

Damascus was the royal city of Syria, and there are numerous references to it in the Old Testament and the records of the wars of Israel. The single New Testament reference is in connection with the conversion of Paul. But to me it is interesting that a group of Christian disciples were already there, bringing the new life of the Gospel to the oldest of all cities.

It was a different challenge that Christianity met at Antioch, where three hundred miles north of Jerusalem in a very new city. It was the greatest and most magnificent of sixteen Antiochs that Seleucus

The first book to be reviewed will be Amos. Not only will his message be presented but also pertinent facts pertaining to his life. The Old Testament prophets are among the most colorful and influential men of all times. Their messages are very applicable to our present day situation. The review of their lives and books will add to the Biblical knowledge of the hearer.

Operation Pray To Be Conducted For World Peace

Over six million members of the nation's largest civic and veterans organizations will join forces May 3 to offer a united prayer for world peace, Horace E. Henderson, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, announced here today through officers of the Monroe and West Monroe Jaycees.

The program, titled "Operation Pray," was originated in March by the U. S. Jaycees to assist churches in bringing about a nationwide religious reawakening. In recent weeks the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lions and Kiwanis have offered their full support to Operation Pray, thereby initiating for the first time a consolidated religious effort on the part of major service organizations.

"In carrying out Operation Pray, each of the 2,050 Jaycee chapters and co-operating organizations will adopt a resolution calling for a day of national prayer on Sunday, May 3, asking for divine guidance for President Eisenhower, the Cabinet, Congress and Judiciary in their efforts to lead the world to peace."

Henderson said. The resolutions will be signed by chapter presidents and returned to Henderson who will forward them on to President Eisenhower. Additional copies of the resolution will be sent by each chapter to the local mayor and to the governor.

"The program also will include an all-out campaign on the part of the local organizations to encourage community-wide participation in the national day of prayer," Henderson added. "In every community, letters will be sent to local ministers asking for their cooperation, and the mayors will be requested to proclaim May 3 as the day for every local resident to offer a prayer for world peace."

Henderson expressed the belief that Operation Pray, by enlisting the consolidated effort of five organizations, will exert a powerful force in stimulating renewed national interest in the principles of God.

1st Methodist Is Planning On Air Condition

All workers in the First Methodist Church air conditioning campaign met in the social room of the new educational building at 7 o'clock Friday evening, for a report meeting on the progress of the financial campaign.

Bids opened last Tuesday showed that it will require $33,500 to completely air - condition the building with the system as planned by the engineers.

The campaign is getting well underway and over $8500 has been indicated in reports thus far. There are many workers yet to report, and it is believed that the campaign will proceed until completion.

All workers including division and team captains and team members, and the special gifts committee, attended the Friday night meeting, called by G. Thomas Fraser, general chairman.

The contractor has been asked to place tentative orders for the materials conditioned on signing a contract when the financial campaign is over, and in that way the work can be rushed to completion for this summer if it can be financed.

A visitor, impressed with the boardwalk in our Atlantic City, said he would be even more interested in the double-columned corso that ran in a straight line through Antioch for five miles, with statues, fountains, flowers and adornments along the way. And if the visitor to Mount Rushmore is impressed with the sculptured heads of our Presidents, what would he think of a whole mountain sculptured into a vast statue of Christ?

This was Mt. Sulpis looming above the city.

But with all its wealth, culture, grandeur, and pagan temples, Antioch had a sinister distinction. It was the wickedest, most licentious city of its time. Roman moralists, decrying the evils of their own city, were wont to say that "the Orientals had overflowed the Tiber."

Yet it was here in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians. It was the Christian Gospel and the Christian way, penetrating a world of evil and of pagan culture. It is a symbol of the Christian Gospel and the Christian way ever opposing and conquering evil, establishing a new culture and splendor upon moral and spiritual foundations.

It was a different challenge that Christianity met at Antioch, about three hundred miles north of Jerusalem in a very new city. It was the greatest and most magnificent of sixteen Antiochs that Seleucus Nikator (B.C. 312-280), a successor to Alexander the Great, built, and named after his father Antiochus.

Situated on the navigable river of Orontes 14 miles from the Mediterranean, Antioch was then a city of about half-a-million people on the great line of trade between east and west and immensely prosperous and wealthy. In its splendor it aspired to surpass all other cities of that ancient world.

Daddy, the count is on you . . . not the batter. You're not pitching him strikes. If he gets on base, it will be a miracle. You are doing both the pitching and umpiring the game. Quite a novelty setup you have there, DADDY. How is that youngster to learn to play the game of life in GOLDEN RULE FASHION when his own daddy throws him nothing but "balls" and calls 'em strikes? Why, your son never will have a chance. You have set the pace daddy . . . blazed the trail of your own blood to a life of dishonesty, greed, and foul play when you fail to put 'em over the plate.

Your church has a remedy for this sort of conduct. It upholds the better way of life through the teaching of God's word. The church aids you in establishing a principal . . . The GOLDEN RULE PRINCIPAL and to build a faith strong enough to play the game of life in strict GOLDEN RULE FASHION.

Letter Received From Canterbury, Prisoner Of Reds

Mrs. Irene Richbourg, 3711 Lee Avenue, Monroe, yesterday received a letter from her son, Pfc. Kimbel O. Canterbury, a prisoner of war in Korea.

The letter, dated December 11, 1952, said in part, "I'm fine and in good health. I sent my best wishes to loved ones and friends and am looking forward to the day when I can come home."

Pfc. Canterbury was taken prisoner Nov. 2, 1950 when his 1st. Cavalry unit was enveloped by the enemy.

In a letter dated August 6, 1952 he had someone write for him since his eyesight was bad. Mrs. Richbourg said the more recent letter was also dictated.

Pfc. Canterbury wants his friends to write. His address: Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea c/o Chinese People's Committee for World Peace, Peking, China.

RUBY WHITEHEAD

Choudrant Girl Has Scholarship To University

Miss Ruby Whitehead of Choudrant is the first Northeast State student to receive a Louisiana State University honorary scholarship for graduate study at that institution. President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday that the grant had been authorized by the LSU Board of Supervisors.

Beginning this year, the scholarship will be given annually to a local college student. The award carries a cash value of $270 for the academic year and exemption from all university fees with exception of hospital and diploma fees.

Miss Whitehead was nominated by the Northeast faculty as a recipient for the scholarship. The university includes in its requisites for the award that the nominated student have an average of not less than "B" during the junior and senior years, the grades of the senior year being considered at the time the grant is made.

A major in home economics education, Miss Whitehead will be a candidate for graduation at the end of summer school. Then she hopes to enter LSU this fall.

Her college work was preceded by four years of high school study in home economics. She had divided her college training about equally between foods and clothing. Holding a preference for the former, however, she plans to emphasize foods and nutrition in the graduate school with a view of preparing for college teaching. She presently is doing student teaching at the Ouachita Parish High School.

Miss Whitehead holds membership in the Northeast chapter of Future Teachers of America and the Home Economics Club of which she is a former president.

Bell Manufacturing Company, special mill work; Moore Electric Company, electrical work; and Hislop Plumbing Company, plumbing. C. Bell, Jr. said that he had received his work order from the Farnsworth Company and that he will immediately begin the mill work. Harry Moore, of the Moore Electric Company said he also had received a work order. been named as co-winners of the scholarship.

Each of the previous winners received over $400 to be applied toward their L. S. U. senior year in journalism but Bivins, as the single winner this year, will reap a virtual bonanza.

Daniel Eugene Bivins, III, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bivins, Jr., 3704 Cypress Street, West Monroe. He graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1950, after having previously graduated from St. Paschal's Grammar School. Prior to that he attended Georgia Tucker Grammar School in Monroe for three years and Millsaps Grammar School in West Monroe for three years.

While in high school, Bivins was a member of the Latin Club, Civics Club, Jeffersonian club and Key Club, of which he was a member for two years. He was a Junior Red Cross representative, Ouachita Parish High School delegate to Pelican Boys State and a delegate to the high school leadership conference in 1948.

Young Bivins was also a member of the National Honor Society, secretary-treasurer of the sophomore class, sports editor of the Ouachita Lion, a newspaper, won first place in editorial writing in the Louisiana High School Press Association in 1949, was voted the most ambitious boy of the class of 1950, was a member of the 1950 Ouachita Parish High School varsity tennis team and was elected West Monroe city judge in a student-government day program in 1949.

While at L. S. U., where he is a junior, he has been corresponding secretary and parliamentarian of his social fraternity, Sigma Chi. He is a member of Phi Sigma Iota, national honorary romance language fraternity, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity. He has been a proofreader, sports editor and news editor of the Daily Reveille, campus tabloid, and was associate editor of Who-Ack, Sigma Chi official publication, in 1950. He was also on the dean's list twice.

Young Bivins is well known in Monroe and West Monroe, as well as at Louisiana State University, and has many friends throughout the state. He makes friends rapidly and is popular wherever he is known.

Past winners of the Ewing Journalism scholarship were Eric Smith, of Jennings, and Mary Turner Spencer of Baton Rouge, 1950; Delos Knight, of Bogalusa, 1951; and Mack B. Solomon, of Pensacola, Fla., and Nancy C. Collins, of Shreveport, 1952.

The practice of choosing one boy and one girl as co-winners during the past three years stems from the annual Robert Ewing L. S. U. scholarships awards which were presented for six years before being replaced by the present journalism scholarships.

The original Robert Ewing L. S. U. scholarships were awarded each year to one boy and one girl who were chosen as winners in a state wide essay contest. The essay contest was open to high school juniors and seniors scholastically in the top fourth of their class, and winners were not limited to any particular course at the university. The first prize winner received $500 a year for four years; the second place winner received $350 a year for four years. Approximately $23,600 has been awarded for education at L. S. U. under the two forms of Ewing scholarships.

The present journalism scholarships, however, are open only to junior students of the L. S. U. School of Journalism. Winners are chosen on the basis of scholarships, the "probability of outstanding success in the field of journalism," and the "proper attitude toward American ideas and institutions."

Nor is there any specification that the award be divided among any certain number of students each year. It may be awarded to one person or more than one as determined by an L. S. U. scholarship committee created through the trust.

Rites Today For Victim Of Gunshot

RUSTON, La., April 18. (Special)—Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. at the New Hope Baptist church for Oley J. Truett, 29, who died late Friday night of a gunshot wound. He had been in a Ruston hospital since early Thursday morning, when he was found in his back yard.

The 29-year-old veteran of World War II under went surgery late Friday in an effort to remove the bullet from his chest.

Details of the shooting were not known since there were no witnesses. Truett, according to the Lincoln parish sheriff department, went into the backyard of his home in the New Hope community just before breakfast Thursday. Shortly after his family heard a shot. They found him lying on the ground.

No motive for suicide was known by the sheriff department, but officers indicated an investigation is being carried on.

The Rev. A. A. Materna will officiate at the funeral assisted by Rev. C. S. Cadwallader and D. B. Tullos. Interment will follow in the New Hope cemetery under the direction of the Kilpatrick home of Ruston.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Gurthrie Truett; two sisters, Mary Jo Truett, New Hope community, and Mrs. T. A. Mathis, Portsmouth, Va., and one brother, Cleo Truett, Lubbock, Texas.

ties will be formally crowned in a "Torrid Twenties" cabaret party on Hotel Frances roof, on April 24 and 25.

Each service club here is asked to submit name of a member as candidate for the formal crowning. Thus far only four clubs have entered the contest. They are the Civitan, with C. Dudley Gravette as its entrant; other clubs and entrants are: Lions club, Bert Root; Optimist club, Billy Adams, and North Monroe Lions Club, Max Kulcke.

The winner will be secured through votes that are cast and an exciting time is planned. The candidates all say that heretofore beautiful young girls have been formally crowned and have stolen the show from men. Now the order is being reversed, and an evening torrid and delightful is in prospect.

Ten men comprise the active committee who are out to secure names of persons who desire to join the proposed Elks club in Monroe, which it is proposed to rejuvenate. It is necessary to secure as many as 100 charter members and 150 is an even more desirable number.

Here are the names of the committee any one of whom will be glad to discuss plans and to receive membership applications:

Four Northeast Students To Enter Medic Schools

For the second time in two years, four Northeast State pre-med students have been accepted in medical schools in two states. Three will attend the Louisiana State University medical school in New Orleans and one will enter the University of West Virginia Medical School next fall.

This marks the second time that four pre-med students at Northeast State had applied for medical school and have been accepted, giving the college a 100 per cent record in this particular field.

Those who will attend LSU's school for doctors are James C. Houston, Gerald S. Harbour and Calvin B. Folds, all of Monroe. George S. Chambers of Logan, West Virginia, has been accepted in the West Virginia school.

Houston is a graduate of Basikin High School and an ordained Baptist minister. He is presently serving as pastor of the New Light Baptist Church in Monroe. He plans to serve in a foreign field as a medical missionary upon graduation from medical studies. He organized the Faith Baptist Church in Monroe in 1945. A married man, Houston will be graduated at Northeast in May.

Harbour was graduated from Ouachita Parish High School and is married. He is a veteran of three years service with the Fifth Air Force in Korea and Japan.

Married and the father of two children, Folds, is also a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School. He was accepted as a medical student at both LSU and the University of Tennessee, but chose the former school because of personal reasons. He is a veteran of three and one-half years' service with the Third Marine Division in the Pacific theatre of operations. Folds is a licensed mortician in Louisiana and Texas, having been graduated from the Landis College of Mortuary Science in Houston.

BILOXI, Miss., April 18 (U)—Thomas E. Shroyer, a Washington attorney, predicted today that the Taft-Hartley Act would be amended this year to return to the states more authority to legislate in the labor field.

Shroyer, speaking before the closing session of the Gulf States Industrial Conference, told delegates that he expected other Taft-Hartley amendments to guarantee a greater latitude of free speech in labor-management relations and to guarantee workers rights to express desires on unionization or secret ballots.

From Canterbury,
Prisoner Of Reds

Mrs. Irene Richbourg, 3711 Lee Avenue, Monroe, yesterday received a letter from her son, Pfc. Kimbel O. Canterbury, a prisoner of war in Korea.

The letter, dated December 11, 1952, said in part, "I'm fine and in good health. I sent my best wishes to loved ones and friends and am looking forward to the day when I can come home."

Pfc. Canterbury was taken prisoner Nov. 2, 1950 when his 1st. Cavalry unit was enveloped by the enemy.

In a letter dated August 6, 1952 he had someone write for him since his eyesight was bad. Mrs. Richbourg said the more recent letter was also dictated.

Pfc. Canterbury wants his friends to write. His address: Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea c/o Chinese People's Committee for World Peace, Peking, China.

RUBY WHITEHEAD

Choudrant Girl
Has Scholarship
To University

Miss Ruby Whitehead of Choudrant is the first Northeast State student to receive a Louisiana State University honorary scholarship for graduate study at that institution. President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday that the grant had been authorized by the LSU Board of Supervisors.

Beginning this year, the scholarship will be given annually to a local college student. The award carries a cash value of $270 for the academic year and exemption from all university fees with exception of hospital and diploma fees.

Miss Whitehead was nominated by the Northeast faculty as a recipient for the scholarship. The university includes in its requisites for the award that the nominated student have an average of not less than "B" during the junior and senior years, the grades of the senior year being considered at the time the grant is made.

A major in home economics education, Miss Whitehead will be a candidate for graduation at the end of summer school. Then she hopes to enter LSU this fall.

Her college work was preceded by four years of high school study in home economics. She had divided her college training about equally between foods and clothing. Holding a preference for the former, however, she plans to emphasize foods and nutrition in the graduate school with a view of preparing for college teaching. She presently is doing student teaching at the Ouachita Parish High School.

Miss Whitehead holds membership in the Northeast chapter of Future Teachers of America and the Home Economics Club of which she is a former president.

Rites Today
For Victim
Of Gunshot

RUSTON, La., April 18. (Special)—Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. at the New Hope Baptist church for Oley J. Truett, 29, who died late Friday night of a gunshot wound. He had been in a Ruston hospital since early Thursday morning, when he was found in his back yard.

The 29-year-old veteran of World War II underwent surgery late Friday in an effort to remove the bullet from his chest.

Details of the shooting were not known since there were no witnesses. Truett, according to the Lincoln parish sheriff department, went into the back yard of his home in the New Hope community just before breakfast Thursday. Shortly after his family heard a shot. They found him lying on the ground.

No motive for suicide was known by the sheriff department, but officers indicated an investigation is being carried on.

The Rev. L. A. Materne will officiate at the funeral assisted by Rev. C. S. Cadwallader and D. B. Tullos. Interment will follow in the New Hope cemetery under the direction of the Kilpatrick home of Ruston.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Gurthrie Truett; two sisters, Mary Jo Truett, New Hope community, and Mrs. T. A. Mathis, Portsmouth, Va., and one brother, Cleo Truett, Lubbock, Texas.

ties will be formally crowned in a "Torril Twenties" cabaret party on Hotel Frances roof, on April 24 and 25.

Each service club here is asked to submit name of a member as candidate for the formal crowning. Thus far only four clubs have entered the contest. They are the Civitan, with C. Dudley Gravette as its entrant; other clubs and entrants are: Lions club, Bert Root; Optimist club, Billy Adams; and North Monroe Lions Club, Max Kulcke.

The winner will be secured through votes that are cast and an exciting time is planned. The candidates all say that heretofore beautiful young girls have been formally crowned and have stolen the show from men. Now the order is being reversed, and an evening torrid and delightful is in prospect.

Ten men comprise the active committee who are out to secure names of persons who desire to join the proposed Elks club in Monroe, which it is proposed to rejuvenate. It is necessary to secure as many as 100 charter members and 150 is an even more desirable number.

Here are the names of the committee any one of whom will be glad to discuss plans and to receive membership applications:

For the second time in two years, four Northeast State pre-med students have been accepted in medical schools in two states. Three will attend the Louisiana State University medical school in New Orleans and one will enter the University of West Virginia Medical School next fall.

This marks the second time that four pre-med students at Northeast State had applied for medical school and have been accepted, giving the college a 100 per cent record in this particular field.

Those who will attend LSU's school for doctors are James C. Houston, Gerald S. Harbour and Calvin B. Folds, all of Monroe. George S. Chambers of Logan, West Virginia, has been accepted in the West Virginia school.

Houston is a graduate of Basikin High School and an ordained Baptist minister. He is presently serving as pastor of the New Light Baptist Church in Monroe. He plans to serve in a foreign field as a medical missionary upon graduation from medical studies. He organized the Faith Baptist Church in Monroe in 1945. A married man, Houston will be graduated at Northeast in May.

Harbour was graduated from Ouachita Parish High School and is married. He is a veteran of three years service with the Fifth Air Force in Korea and Japan.

Married and the father of two children, Folds, is also a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School. He was accepted as a medical student at both LSU and the University of Tennessee, but chose the former school because of personal reasons. He is a veteran of three and one-half years' service with the Third Marine Division in the Pacific theatre of operations. Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The Cotton States League opens its season Tuesday night with fans in rival cities of the three-state circuit wondering how strong their clubs are, whether they have a pennant winner, a team capable of making the playoffs, or a wash-out.

Only time will tell, but this is the season of the year when everybody likes to think he's holding nothing but aces. But the sweetest cream will sour under certain conditions, and the stars of '52 could be the flops of '53 while some unsung rookies rise to the heights in the impending campaign.

It's also "guessing time" so we might just as well stick our necks out along with the few others who enjoy the redacting business even if caught away off base.

Meridian and Jackson are putting out the dope that they don't have much so far are still looking for help. That sounds like propaganda with a capital P. We figure Meridian and Jackson will be about two of the toughest clubs in the league. The Millers set the pace all the way last year and have Bobby Harrison, that strongarmed pitcher, back for another whirl. Jackson is making a fresh start in the loop after an absence of several years, but Willis Hudlin is in a good baseball town and his club just can't be counted out.

Monroe, Natchez, and Pine Bluff look like the challengers for third place. We like the looks of Manager Charley Harrington's boys well enough to rate them third while hoping we're wrong and the Sports are at least two notches better. That leaves Natchez, always tough, and Pine Bluff, just a rugged, to fight it out for the No. 4 playoff spot. We like Natchez to make the grade.

El Dorado could be a surprise package, but right now we can see them no higher than sixth. That leaves Greenville, despite promises of help from the St. Louis Cardinals, and the Hot Springs Bathers to duel over the cellar slot. It looks like a bad year for Greenville even if the Bucks are coming up with new blood under new management.

The order of finish last year with won and lost records in parenthesis was Meridian (78-48), Natchez (73-53), Greenwood (70-56), Monroe (66-60), El Dorado (65-61), Pine Bluff (62-64), Greenville (47-79), Hot Springs (43-83).

Our choice for this year, in order, is Meridian, Jackson, Monroe, Natchez, Pine Bluff, El Dorado, Hot Springs, and Greenville. At least we can't be much worse than last year when we tagged Monroe first, Meridian second, Pine Bluff third, Greenwood fourth, Natchez fifth, and we forget how we went on Hot Springs, Greenville, and El Dorado.

Professional baseball scouts, we understand, are already looking with interest toward Gilbert High School's Don Brocato, a 190-pound senior who stands over six feet, and has hurled seven-no-hits games during his high school career. He notched No. 7, first of this season, against Ogden High Friday without walking a batter and fanning ten.

Young Brocato is the son of a former professional baseball player, Joe Brocato, who was playing in the Cotton States twenty years ago, and was with old Monroe club for a while. We know of at least one pro scout, "Schoolboy" Rowe, who will be in Crowville tomorrow to see the Gilbert-Crowville game. Rowe, once a major league hurler with Detroit Tigers, will be at Crowville chiefly to watch Brocato in action. If Rowe's report to the Tiger headquarters is favorable, that club will be trying to best others to the fine prospect upon graduation day.

Bernice Baseball Tourney To Begin On Friday, Apr. 21

BERNICE, La., Apr. 18 (Special)—According to Bernice High School baseball coach, Ben Carroll, the Bernice Invitational tournament will get underway Friday night, April 21, with play continuing Saturday afternoon and night.

Fifteen teams have been entered, although only eight definite acknowledgements have been received to date. Coach Carroll said he was "fairly sure" of the others who have all promised participation, and whose entries should be received before Tuesday.

If all cities are entered, play will be in Thursday night, instead of Friday, although the consolation and championship games will not be played until Saturday night, regardless.

First, second, and third place trophies will be awarded the winners, and in Mr. Carroll's opinion, the entrants are evenly balanced, with no seeding necessary.

There will be four sessions, with only afternoon and evening games scheduled in the tournament, which will have no morning tilts on tap. Entrants are to be Troy Sharp, Haynesville, and John Hudson, Farmerville, with Alton Braden, Bernice, assuming the official scorer's chores.

Terms expected to enter are: Bastrop, Ruston, Farmerville, Marion, Linville, Downsview, Spearsville, Junction City, Sumnerfield, Lisbon, Hico, Dubach, Byrd of Shreveport, Calhoun, and host team, Bernice.

Monroe Defeats El Dorado Team On 6 Hits, 3 To 1

Held hitless for five innings, the Monroe Sports opened up in the sixth and pushed across a run in each of their last three turns at bat to defeat their Cotton States League rivals, the El Dorado Oilers, 3 to 1, in an exhibition game at Legion Memorial Stadium last night.

Today Manager Charley Harrington takes his Sports to Greenville, Miss., to finish their exhibition schedule in the afternoon contest with the Bucks. Official league play begins Tuesday.

The only thing unattractive about last night's game was the weather. The cold wave that moved in during the day was very much in evidence to the 46 paying customers who braved the weather to see the game.

Bill Ross, starting Oiler pitcher, hurled a hitless five-inning stint before turning the pitching duties over to Clyde Baldwin in the sixth. Baldwin gave up two hits in each of the last three frames and all the Monroe runs to be charged with the loss.

Marvin "Hoppy" Hatcher worked the first five frames for the Sports, allowing four hits and the lone El Dorado run.

Johnny Stasney worked the last four innings for Monroe, holding the Oilers scoreless while giving up three hits, but Stasney's bat played an important role in bringing Monroe the victory. Twice Stasney poled singles into center field, and each time he scored.

The Oilers' lone run was unearned, coming in the fifth inning when Tom Soja reached first on Gene Robinson's error in left field, advancing as Bobby Scott, a Monroe product of 1951, walked, and scored when Robinson dropped Jay Jeffries' long fly.

One was out in the sixth when Stasney lashed his first single into center, stole second, advanced on Nels Daehn's infield hit, and scored on Bill Sharp's fly to left, tying up the game.

In the seventh, Adrian Burk singled, advanced when Ray Cross walked, and scored as Robinson made up for his fielding bobbles by hammering Burk home with a smash into center field, putting the Sports ahead.

Stasney led off the eighth for Monroe with his second hit. Daehn sacrificed him to second, and a single by Sharp brought Stasney home with the final run.

Tom Sharkey To Be Buried With Military Honors

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18 (AP)—Sailor Tom Sharkey, the heavy-weight who fought the best of them at the turn of the century, will be buried in Golden Gate National Cemetery next Tuesday with full military honors.

He entered the boxing ring in the '90s while in the U. S. Navy. A rosary service will take place Monday at 8 p.m. There will be a Requiem High Mass at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 21, at St. Patrick's Church.

A funeral chapel spokesman said there was only one surviving relative, a nephew, Joseph Sharkey, in Garden City, N. Y., whose street address was not known here. Sharkey, 79, died in a hospital Friday after a long heart illness.

Whip Oilers,

A Day With A Sport

A MOST VERSATILE addition to the Monroe Sports is expected to be Lou Stutts (above), capable in the outfield or infield. The 20-year-old athlete from Newberry, S. C., graduated at Newberry High School in 1950, spent two seasons in semi-pro ball with Greenville, S. C., and then turned up at the Shreveport tryout camp last spring to win his first professional contract and assignment to Alexandria of the Evangeline League. He played 75 games as shortstop for the Aces, batting .287, and then moving to Sherman of the Sooner State to play .35 games in the outfield, batting an even .300. Stutts says he's ready to play anywhere Manager Charley Harrington can use him. He weighs 175 pounds, stands five-foot-eleven, and is unmarried. (Staff photo by Leon Noland, Jr.)

Clarkson took the lead in the batting race with a gaudy .467, pounding seven hits in 15 times at bat. He clubbed three home runs to also lead that department and he scored more runs than anybody else with eight.

Clarkson batted in seven runs to the Bob Caffery of San Antonio in the RBI division. In fact, the Buzz was just about the whole show in hitting and run producing. He didn't have as many hits as Caffery and Russ Rose of Fort Worth, but he got more per times tried, playing in one less game than those two. Caffery and Rose had 10 apiece.

John Paul Jones of Shreveport and Harry Scherting of Fort Worth tied for the lead in triples with three each.

Oklahoma City had the most power at the plate. The Indians had a club batting average of .278. San Antonio and Fort Worth were second with .260. The puniest average was that of Beaumont, which had a measly .180.

New Assistant Grid Mentor At Idaho U.

MOSCOW, Idaho, April 18 (AP)—Dixie White, director of athletics and head football coach at Midwestern University in Wichita, Texas, was named assistant football coach at the University of Idaho today.

White and Idaho's head coach, Raymond (Babe) Curfman, were teammates at Texas Tech in the late 1930's. He was a guard, Curfman a quarterback under coach Pete Cawthon.

Dallas' Rookie Third Baseman Leads Batters

DALLAS, April 18 (AP)—Dallas did not do so well in the first week of the Texas League campaign but it's third baseman, Jim (Buzz) Clarkson, did. If all the Eagles were hitting like the hustling rookie it would have been a different story.

Clarkson took the lead in the batting race with a gaudy .467, pounding seven hits in 15 times at bat. He clubbed three home runs to also lead that department and he scored more runs than anybody else with eight.

CINCINNATI, April 18 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today sold right-handed pitcher Eddie Blake to Indianapolis of the American Association. The outright sale brings their roster down to 28 men.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., April 18 (AP)—Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y., rapidly gaining the reputation of being one of professional golf's most consistent players, made the third round his worst one here today but held on to his three-stroke lead in the $12,500 Virginia Beach Open Tournament.

Ford, golf's fourth leading money earner this year, put together a 33-34-67, two under par, for a 54-hole total of 135. His two previous rounds were 63 and 65.

Trailing Ford by three strokes at the three-quarter mark, just as he did yesterday, was Dick Metz, the 44-year-old Kansan from Maple City, who matched the leader's performance today with a 76 of his own.

Francis (Bo) Winger, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., both gained ground on the front-running Ford.

The leading 54-hole scores (54-hole par 207):

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The Cotton States League opens its season Tuesday night with fans in rival cities of the three-state circuit wondering how strong their clubs are, whether they have a pennant-finner, a team capable of making the playoffs, or a wash-out.

Only time will tell, but this is the season of the year when everybody likes to think he's holding nothing but aces. The sweetest cream will sour under certain conditions, but the stars of '52 could be the flops of '53 while some unsung cookies rise to the heights in the impending campaign.

It's also "guessing time" so we might just as well stick our necks out along with the few others who enjoy the predicting business even if caught away off base.

Meridian and Jackson are putting out the dope that they don't have much so far are still looking for help. That sounds like propaganda with a capital P. We figure Meridian and Jackson will be about two of the toughest clubs in the league. The Millers set the pace all the way last year and have Bobby Harrison, that strongarmed-pitcher, back for another whirl. Jackson is making a fresh start in the loop after an absence of several years, but Willis Hudlin is in a good baseball town and his club just can't be counted out.

Monroe, Natchez, and Pine Bluff look like the challengers for third place. We like the looks of Manager Charley Harrington's boys well enough to rate them third while hoping we're wrong and the Sports are at least two notches better. That leaves Natchez, always tough, and Pine Bluff, just a rugged, to fight it out for the No. 4 playoff spot. We like Natchez to make the grade.

El Dorado could be a surprise package, but right now we can see them no higher than sixth. That leaves Greenville, despite promises of help from the St. Louis Cardinals, and the Hot Springs Bathers to duel over the cellar slot. It looks like a bad year for Greenville even if the Bucks are coming up with new blood under new management.

The order of finish last year with won and lost records in parenthesis was Meridian (78-48), Natchez (73-53), Greenwood (70-56), Monroe (66-60), El Dorado (65-61), Pine Bluff (62-64), Greenville (47-79), Hot Springs (43-83).

Our choice for this year, in order, is Meridian, Jackson, Monroe, Natchez, Pine Bluff, El Dorado, Hot Springs, and Greenville. At least we can't be much worse than last year when we tagged Monroe first, Meridian second, Pine Bluff third, Greenwood fourth, Natchez fifth, and we forgot how we went on Hot Springs, Greenville, and El Dorado.

Professional baseball scouts, we understand, are already looking with interest toward Gilbert High School's Don Brocato, a 190-pound senior who stands over six feet, and has hurled seven-no-hits games during his high school career. He pitched No. 7, first of this season, against Ogden High Friday without walking a batter and fanning ten.

Young Brocato is the son of a former professional baseball player, Joe Brocato, who was playing in the Cotton States twenty years ago, and was with old Monroe club for a while. We know of at least one pro scout, "Schoolboy" Rowe, who will be in Crowley tomorrow to see the Gilbert-Crowley game. Rowe, once a major league hurler with Detroit Tigers, will be at Crowley chiefly to watch Brocato in action. If Rowe's report to the Tiger headquarters is favorable, that club will be trying to best others to the fine prospect upon graduation day.

Bernice Baseball Tourney To Begin On Friday, Apr. 21

BERNICE, La., Apr. 18 (Special)—According to Bernice High School baseball coach, Ben Carroll, the Bernice Invitational tournament will get underway Friday night, April 24, with play continuing Saturday afternoon and night.

Fifteen teams have been entered, although only eight definite acknowledgements have been received to date. Coach Carroll said the game was "fairly sure" of the others who have all promised participation, and whose entries should be received before Tuesday.

If all cities are entered, play will begin Thursday night, instead of Friday, although the consolation and championship games will not be played until Saturday night, regardless.

First, second, and third place trophies will be awarded the winners, and in Mr. Carroll's opinion, the entrants are evenly balanced, with no seeding necessary.

There will be four sessions, with only afternoon and evening games scheduled in the tournament, which will have no morning tilts on tap. Umpires are to be Troy Sharp, Haynesville; and John Hudson, Farmerville; with Alton Bradley, Bernice, assuming the official scorer's chores.

Terms expected to enter are: Bastrop, Ruston, Farmerville, Marion, Linville, Downsview, Spearsville, Junction City, Summerfield, Lisbon, Hico, Dubach, Byrd of Shreveport, Calhoun, and host team, Bernice.

NEW YORK, April 18 (AP)—Alfred Vanderbilt's undefeated Native Dancer returned to the racing wars today and proved he was a pretty tough customer to handle in the coming three-year-old classics by smothering his field in the first division of the $35,350 Gotham Stakes at Jamaica.

The second section of the split race, each with nine horses competing, was a thriller won by the Trio stable's Laffango in a torrid duel with the Saxon stable's Invigorator.

For the mile and one sixteenth, Laffango was clocked in 1:44 flat, one-fifth faster than for the Dancer, but the manner in which they won showered the raises on the Dancer. It was his tenth straight win, coming after nine victories in 1952.

Here was a colt unraced since last fall, while Laffango has been in action during the winter and spring. Laffango won the Exerimental Free Handicap here April 8, in which Invigorator was a fast-closing third.

So the Dancer's spin was especially impressive, as Jockey Eric Guerin sat still most of the way around, asked for some speed when he needed it, then came from off the pace to collar the leaders when necessary.

Sports Whip Oilers, Visit Bucks Today

Monroe Defeats El Dorado Team On 6 Hits, 3 To 1

Held hitless for five innings, the Monroe Sports opened up in the sixth and pushed across a run in each of their last three turns at bat to defeat their Cotton States League rivals, the El Dorado Oilers, 3 to 1, in an exhibition game at Legion Memorial Stadium last night.

Today Manager Charley Harrington takes his Sports to Greenville, Miss., to finish their exhibition schedule in the afternoon contest with the Bucks. Official league play begins Tuesday.

The only thing unattractive about last night's game was the weather. The cold wave that moved in during the day was very much in evidence to the 46 paying customers who braved the weather to see the game.

Bill Russ, starting Oiler pitcher, hurled a hitless five-inning stint before turning the pitching duties over to Clyde Baldwin in the sixth. Baldwin gave up two hits in each of the last three frames and all the Monroe runs to be charged with the loss.

Marvin "Hoppy" Hatcher worked the first five frames for the Sports, allowing four hits and the lone El Dorado run.

Johnny Stasney worked the last four innings for Monroe, holding the Oilers scoreless while giving up three hits, but Stasney's bat played an important role in bringing Monroe the victory. Twice Stasney poked singles into center field, and each time he scored.

The Oilers' lone run was unearned, coming in the fifth inning when Tom Soja reached first on Gene Robinson's error in left field, advancing as Bobby Scott, a Monroe product of 1951, walked, and scored when Robinson dropped Jay Jeffries' long fly.

One was out in the sixth when Stasney lashed his first single into center, stole second, advanced on Nels Daehn's infield hit, and scored on Bill Sharp's fly to left, tying up the game.

In the seventh, Adrian Burk singled, advanced when Ray Coss walked, and scored as Robinson made up for his fielding bobbles by hammering Burk home with a smash into center field, putting the Sports ahead.

Stasney led off the eighth for Monroe with his second hit. Daehn sacrificed him to second, and a single by Sharp brought Stasney home with the final run.

Tom Sharkey To Be Buried With Military Honors

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18 (AP)—Sailor Tom Sharkey, the heavy-weight who fought the best of them at the turn of the century, will be buried in Golden Gate National Cemetery next Tuesday with full military honors.

He entered the boxing ring in the '90s while in the U. S. Navy. A rosary service will take place Monday at 8 p.m. There will be a Requiem High Mass at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 21, at St. Patrick's Church.

A funeral chapel spokesman said there was only one surviving relative, a nephew, Joseph Sharkey in Garden City, N. Y., whose street address was not known here.

Sharkey, 79, died in a hospital Friday after a long heart illness.

A Day With A Sport

A MOST VERSATILE addition to the Monroe Sports is expected to be Lou Stutts (above), capable in the outfield or infield. The 20-year-old athlete from Newberry, S. C., graduated at Newberry High School in 1950, spent two seasons in semi-pro ball with Greenville, S. C., and then turned up at the Shreveport tryout camp last spring to win his first professional contract and assignment to Alexandria of the Evangeline League. He played 75 games as shortstop for the Aces, batting .287, and then moving to Sherman of the Sooner State to play 35 games in the outfield, batting an even .300. Stutts says he's ready to play anywhere Manager Charley Harrington can use him. He weighs 175 pounds, stands five-foot-eleven, and is unmarried. (Staff photo by Leon Noland, Jr.)

Hallandale 'Cap' Taken By Elixir By Four Lengths

MIAMI, Fla., April 18 (AP)—Dave Schneider's Elixir registered his second straight stakes victory by romping to a four-length triumph in the $15,000 Hallandale Handicap before 15,355 spectators at Gulfstream Park today.

The five-year-old gelding carried top weight of 122 pounds while out-running Joe Gavegnano's Joey Boy, Mrs. J. P. Kezek's Abbe Sting was a half length behind Joey Boy.

Elixir was the $4.50 favorite of the bettors and was ridden by Charley Burr, the leading rider at the meeting with 44 winners to his credit. He covered the mile and an eighth in 1:50 2-5.

Burr sent Elixir to the lead at the start and the gelding, who tallied in the Fort Lauderdale Handicap two weeks ago, quickly opened a three-length advantage over Joey Boy. The 1-2 order was not changed throughout the route as Elixir merely galloped along in front with Joey Boy driving to stay within striking distance.

A $78.70 daily double pay-off was posted on the combination of Metopia and Lets Live.

Pale Sox Edge Indians In Wild Battle, 7 To 6

CHICAGO, April 18 (AP)—In the new season's wildest game there were 26 bases on balls, only four shy of a major league record, as the Chicago White Sox today capitalized on one of the game's six errors to score an eighth inning run for a 7-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

In addition to the many walks—which threatened to match the Detroit-Philadelphia record of 30 set in 1916—and the errors, there were two hit batsmen and one wild pitch.

Cleveland left 14 men stranded and the Sox abandoned 11. Seven times the bases were filled for 13 runs, only seven hits were made, four of them by the Sox.

One of the hit batsmen was big Luke Easter, the Indians' first baseman. He was struck by one of Lou Kretlow's sinkers in the fourth inning and suffered a fracture of a metatarsal bone in his left foot. The attending physician reported he would be out of action for at least six weeks.

The Sox' Tommy Byrne yielded two hits and six walks, Kretlow one and eight and Harry Dorish, the eventual winner, 0-0.

For Cleveland, Early Wynn gave up two hits and two walks, Dave Hoskins 1-5, Ted Wilks 1-0, and loser Al Aber 0-5.

Ferris Face scored the decisive Sox run. He walked and went from first to third when Minnie Minoso sacrificed and then knocked down Rocky Krsnich grounded to Roscn and then Catcher Jim Hegman dropped the throw to the plate as Fain slid in.

Box score: CHICAGO 7, CLEVELAND 6.

Maglie Still Same Old Jinx To Brooklyn Bums

NEW YORK, April 18 (AP) — Sal Maglie continues to haunt the Brooklyn Dodgers despite their perch atop the National League today.

Maglie is the veteran New York Giants' righthander, who answers to the nickname of "The Barber." Sal probably never has wielded a razor on anybody other than himself but there is no denying that he keeps the fidgety Dodgers in a lather.

The power-hitting Brooks usually butcher up any other pitcher in the league but as soon as Maglie saunters out on the hill, they weaken.

On Friday, for instance, they racked up five Giant hurlers for 16 hits and a 12-4 triumph. That was during the evening portion of a day-night double header. In the afternoon, however, they got six hits and three runs. Through six and two thirds innings, they failed to get a hit, let alone a run.

The reason? Why, Maglie, of course.

Sal had to have help from Hoyt Wilhelm in the ninth before winning, 6-3. It was his 16th triumph over the Dodgers in three years. They have beaten him only five times.

It wasn't difficult to understand then why there was a noticeable lack of jubilation in the Dodger clubhouse after their one-sided win over the Giants in the night-cap. The Brooks couldn't forget Maglie.

"I think Maglie beats us because the fellows know he is Maglie," said a puzzled Jackie Robinson. "They get in their minds that he is their jinx pitcher and they can't shake the idea. He wasn't as fast out there today as he used to be. In fact, he isn't quick any more."

"This may sound like sour grapes," said Roy Campanella, the slugging Brooklyn catcher. "But I swear I have never seen Maglie look so bad against us. Sure, he held us hitless until two out in the seventh. But I still insist, I've never seen him look so bad. He didn't have that old snap to his curve ball. And he didn't look fast at all."

How did he account for Maglie's success?

"Control," Campanella answered. "He was hitting the corners and he was mixing them up pretty good. He kept the boys off balance. Yes sir, his control saved him today."

For the record, Robinson and Campanella, between them, got two-thirds of the Dodger hits off Maglie. Jackie rapped two singles and scored one of Brooklyn's runs. Campanella got a single and a triple and drove in two tallies.

What do the other Dodgers think of Maglie? Do they agree with Robinson and Campanella that Sal is slipping?

"I'd still see the same Maglie as far as I can see," said First Baseman Gil Hodges, "a master, a real master."

Patty, Barten Reach Palermo Singles Finals

PALERMO, Sicily, April 18 (AP) — Americans Budge Patty, Los Angeles, and Bernard Barten, San Antonio, Tex., continued their sweep of Italian tennis tournaments today by battling into the finals of the Palermo tourney.

Patty came from behind to beat his semi-final opponent, Sven Davidson, Sweden, 2-6, 6-3, 12-10. Barten had an equally tough struggle with Wladislaw Skonecki, expatriated Pole, before winning 6-2, 3-6, 9-7.

Patty and Barten will meet tomorrow. Patty beat Barten in the finals of the Naples Tournament last Monday.

Barten also will play in the men's doubles, teamed with Kurt Nielsen, Denmark. They beat favorites Patty and Jaroslav Drobny, Egypt, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6.

In the other semi-final match Gianni Cucelli and Marcello Del Bello, Italy, beat Mario Belardinelli and Rolando Del Bello, Italy, 6-2, 6-4.

Stroke Proves Fatal For Ex-Big Leaguer

STURGIS, Mich., April 18 (AP) — Harry (Hep) Niles, 73-year-old former infielder and outfielder with four American League clubs, died here today. He suffered a stroke Monday and never regained consciousness.

During his 15-year career in ball beginning in 1903, Niles played with the St. Louis Browns, New York Highlanders (forerunners of the New York Yankees), Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

Winding up his professional baseball career with Toledo of the American Association, Niles roomed with a young second baseman named Joe McCarthy, who later led a fabulous career as pitcher of the Yankees.

Wade has knocked down his weight to 162 lbs., and is ready to take on middleweight Williams, who will also be remembered for his victory over hard-hitting Cline Elledge of Tallulah, in an arena semi-final. Cline, who had never been beaten in the local ring prior to that night, was floored several times by the sharp-shooting Williams, who won the unanimous decision.

The Wade-Williams main ten stacks up as another real slugfest — if Williams can evade or absorb the piano-legged lad's thunderous hooks.

In the four preliminaries, Don Ellis, Greenwood, Miss., goes against Tommy Parks, Drew, Miss., in a lightweight clash; Bobby Sanders, Oxford, Miss., fights Fred Foster, Natchez, Miss., in a middleweight bout; L. D. Ellis, brother to Don, but hailing from Carrollton, Miss., and fighting as a lightweight, goes against Nick Joseph, Greenwood, Miss., and in the final prelim, a light-heavyweight tussle, James Keanum, Summer, Miss., fights Jo Jo Ike, Memphis, Tenn.

None of the preliminary fighters have appeared here previously, with the exception of Don Ellis, who put on one of the most crowd-pleasing bouts seen in the arena, battling Bastrop's "Goat" Jones to a four round draw, during which each boy alternated in flooring the other throughout the fight.

Loy Scarbrough, of the Sheriff's Dept., capable boxing referee and boxing-wrestling announcer, will officiate all bouts. Judges will be announced from ringside.

Olympic Body Supports Anzacs' Bid For Games

MEXICO CITY, April 18 (AP) — The International Olympic Committee decided today that the 1956 Olympic games will be held in Melbourne after all.

Despite the still-unresolved problem of the equestrian events, the committee decided after a closed two and a half hour session that the games would stay in Melbourne. The announcement by Otto Mayer of Switzerland, secretary general of the committee, halted the rumors the games might be taken away from the Australians because of insufficient preparations.

The games first were awarded to Melbourne in 1949 but reports persisted in the last three months that the games might be switched to another city. Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, publicly warned the Australians in January that they must prepare properly or lost the games.

W. A. Coles, chairman of the Melbourne organizing committee, said his group would continue to work with Australian government officials in an effort to gain relaxation of the commonwealth's quarantine laws, which sharply restrict importation of foreign horses.

The rules require that only horses from New Zealand, the United Kingdom and Elre be allowed into Australia without delay. Horses from other countries must spend six months in one of these four countries first.

Coles said, however, that the IOC seemed satisfied with Melbourne's progress in preparing for other sports. Coles and Hugh Wells, senior Australian representative of the IOC, came to the meeting equipped with a lengthy report detailing their plans for holding the games.

One proposed solution to the equestrian problem was reported to be shifting the events to another country, but several delegates were flatly against such a plan. Another suggestion was that the equestrian events be eliminated, but Brundage turned this idea down because the equestrian events are traditional Olympic sports.

The Australians proposed yesterday that horses of participation countries be concentrated in England or the United States and examined there by Australian veterinarians. But Japan, among others, pointed out this would be a handicap to far eastern countries.

Nine Latin American countries still not reconciled to the possibility of a quarantine, today discussed the possibility of forming a block pledged not to compete in the equestrian events.

But the Australians pointed out that only six nations need to enter to establish an Olympic event. They said only two other countries would be needed to join the four exempt from quarantine regulations.

The quarantine, incidentally, designed to prevent the introduction of several horse diseases, common in other countries but unknown in Australia.

"This may sound like sour grapes," said Roy Campanella, the slugging Brooklyn catcher. "But I swear I have never seen Maglie look so bad against us. Sure, he held us hitless until two out in the seventh. But I still insist, I've never seen him look so bad. He didn't have that old snap to his curve ball. And he didn't look fast at all."

How did he account for Maglie's success?

"Control," Campanella answered. "He was hitting the corners and he was mixing them up pretty good. He kept the boys off balance. Yes sir, his control saved him today."

For the record, Robinson and Campanella, between them, got two-thirds of the Dodger hits off Maglie. Jackie rapped two singles and scored one of Brooklyn's runs. Campanella got a single and a triple and drove in two tallies.

What do the other Dodgers think of Maglie? Do they agree with Robinson and Campanella that Sal is slipping?

"He's still the same Maglie as far as I can see," said First Baseman Gil Hodges, "a master, a real master."

Stroke Proves Fatal For Ex-Big Leaguer

STURGIS, Mich., April 18 (AP)—Harry (Hep) Niles, 73-year-old former infielder and outfielder with four American League clubs, died here today. He suffered a stroke Monday and never regained consciousness.

During his 15-year career in ball beginning in 1903, Niles played with the St. Louis Browns, New York Highlanders (forerunners of the New York Yankees), Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

Winding up his professional baseball career with Toledo of the American Association, Niles teamed with a young second baseman named Joe McCarthy, who later led a fabulous career as pilot of the Yankees.

Wade has knocked down his weight to 162 lbs., and is ready to take on middleweight Williams, who will also be remembered for his victory over hard-hitting Cline Elledge of Tallulah, in an arena semi-final. Cline, who had never been beaten in the local ring prior to that night, was floored several times by the sharp-shooting Williams, who won the unanimous decision.

The Wade-Williams main ten stacks up as another real slugfest—if Williams can evade or absorb the piano-legged lad's thunderous hooks.

In the four preliminaries, Don Ellis, Greenwood, Miss., goes against Tommy Parks, Drew, Miss., in a lightweight clash; Bobby Sanders, Oxford, Miss., fights Fred Foster, Natchez, Miss., in a middleweight bout; L. D. Ellis, brother to Don, but hailing from Carrollton, Miss., and fighting as a lightweight, goes against Nick Joseph, Greenwood, Miss.; and in the final prelim, a lightweight tussle, James Keanum, Summer, Miss., fights Jo Jo Ike, Memphis, Tenn.

None of the preliminary fighters have appeared here previously, with the exception of Don Ellis, who put on one of the most crowd-pleasing bouts in the arena, battling Bastrop's "Goat" Jones to a four round draw, during which each boy alternated in flooring the other throughout the fight.

Loy Scarborough, of the Sheriff's Dept., capable boxing referee and boxing-wrestling announcer, will officiate all bouts. Judges will be announced from ringside.

Olympic Body Supports Anzacs' Bid For Games

MEXICO CITY, April 18 (AP)—The International Olympic Committee decided today that the 1956 Olympic games will be held in Melbourne after all.

Despite the still-unresolved problem of the equestrian events, the committee decided after a closed two and a half hour session that the games would stay in Melbourne. The announcement by Otto Mayer of Switzerland, secretary general of the committee, halted the rumors the games might be taken away from the Australians because of insufficient preparations.

The games first were awarded to Melbourne in 1949 but reports persisted in the last three months that the games might be switched to another city. Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, publicly warned the Australians in January that they must prepare properly or lost the games.

W. A. Coles, chairman of the Melbourne organizing committee, said his group would continue to work with Australian government officials in an effort to gain relaxation of the commonwealth's quarantine laws, which sharply restrict importation of foreign horses.

The rules require that only horses from New Zealand, the United Kingdom and Eire be allowed into Australia without delay. Horses from other countries must spend six months in one of these four countries first.

Coles said, however, that the IOC seemed satisfied with Melbourne's progress in preparing for other sports. Coles and Hugh Weir, senior Australian representative of the IOC, came to the meeting equipped with a lengthy report detailing their plans for holding the games.

One proposed solution to the equestrian problem was reported to be shifting the events to another country, but several delegates were flatly against such a plan. Another suggestion was that the equestrian events be eliminated, but Brundage turned this idea down because the equestrian events are traditional Olympic sports.

The Australians proposed yesterday that horses of participating countries be concentrated in England or the United States and examined there by Australian veterinarians. But Japan, among others, pointed out this would be a handicap to far eastern countries.

Nine Latin American countries still not reconciled to the possibility of a quarantine, today discussed the possibility of forming a block pledged not to compete in the equestrian events.

But the Australians pointed out that only six nations need to enter to establish an Olympic event. The said only two other countries would be needed to join the four exempt from quarantine regulations.

The quarantine, incidentally, designed to prevent the introduction of several horse diseases, common in other countries but unknown in Australia.

Rookies, Newcomers Hold Keys In Cotton States

52-Year-Old Loop Poised For 38th Season Tuesday

By J. P. FRIEND
BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., April 18 (Special) — The Cotton States League opens its gates for the 38th time during a 52-year span Tuesday night with newcomers and rookies holding the key to strength and success.

With the maximum number of allowable veterans reduced to six, the eight managers, five of them making their loop debuts, have been kept busier than usual this spring locating and lining up suitable players bearing limited service or less classification. Their problems were made more difficult by the fact that 10 vets were possible in '52, and many leagues are resorting to the use of less experienced performers, too.

The managerial picture itself isn't complete. Harold Martin, secured through Greenville, N. C., to lead the Greenville Bucks, quit in a huff the day spring training was begun. Charles Lindquist, veteran pitcher who accompanied Martin to their new assignment, was named temporary skipper, pending possible help from the St. Louis Cardinals. In event the Red Bird management is unable to send a qualified leader, General Manager Bill Maughan indicated that Lindquist could keep the job.

Other managers who are making their league bows include: Bill Adair, El Dorado; Vernon (Moose) Shetter, Hot Springs; Marland (Duke) Doolittle, Jackson; Wayne Tucker, Natchez, and Frank Luchesi, Pine Bluff.

Tommy Davis returns to Meridian in an effort to keep the championship which the Millers won last year flying atop their mast. Charley Harrington, completely recovered from a severe bruising mid-way of the '52 campaign, gets his sophomore managerial assignment with the Monroe Sports. They finished fourth last season, after copping the flag in 1951.

Even though the openers are just a few days away, question marks and uncertainty surround most of the lineups. This is particularly true at Jackson, Natchez and Greenville which have working agreements with clubs of higher classification and must wait until their benefactors can determine their own immediate needs before helping others.

El Dorado and Monroe appear to be all set for the lid liftings, though still on the lookout for likely material. Skipper Adair received quite a boost to his Oiler cause when Montgomery optioned the fleet Bill Carr, (257), infielder. He likely will take third to work with Jimmy Morgan (251) as Jim Cummings, a newcomer, at first, and the chief at second, Bill Brightwell (286) is the No. 1 catcher. In the outfield will be Pel Austin (269), Jay Jefferson (222), and possibly Joe Slaber, brother of Charles (Chuck) Slaber (13-14), who heads the pitching staff. Other hurling returnees are: Bill Lovello, (1-3); Bob Ford (9-5), and Clyde Baldwin, who had a 10-13 record with Clarksdale in 1950.

Harrington has built his current Sport edition around George Andrews (209), shortstop; Nelson Daehn (296), Ray Coss, who was with the club in 1950 and recently discharged from service, outfielders; Ray Rogers, catcher, and Marvin (Hoppy) Hatcher, pitcher, who had a 11-11 mound record in '52, one of the wins a no-hitter. Harrington (.271), is ticketed for third. Adrian Burks, who made football history with Baylor, has nalled down first. Freddie Harriet may start at second. J. T. Jaynes, a .324 thumper with Union City, Tenn., (Kitty) last is the other outfielder. Reinforcements are likely from Shreveport and Augusta, Ga., if needed.

Meridian is counting on a strong pitching staff to offset some possible weaker spots. Bobby Harrison, who won his first 15 games for 2 new league records and wound up with 24-5 in 1952, Joe Kopach (17-12); Hal Knight (3-2); Beverly Gross (11-6) are holdovers. They also have Allan Rogers, a nine-game winner from Panama City. The veteran Bill Lewis (280) will be back behind the plate, assisted by Irving Giordanengo (233) who also may double in the outfield. Three infield spots are settled: Ray Krupa (256), first; Bobby Foster (245), second; and Hugh Glaze (304), third. Gene Pompeia (287) and Lindy Callahan, ex-Ole Miss star who was with Panama City last season, are the other outfielders, besides Manager Davis.

Only the infield and catching are complete at Natchez. Don Allen (335), defending batting champion, will be at first. Skipper Tucker, second; Joe Garcia (170), short, and George Ruzina (295), third, Joe Arnold Pruitt, a rookie, is the leading receiver. Roy Jayne, who posted a 7-8 season record, but won five games in the playoff, and Frank Healey, veteran hurler who returns after two years, are the only pitchers who have earned their jobs. Birmingham is due to send some aid by starting time.

Greenville has come a long way after a from-taw start, with the inner defense and outfield all but determined, along with the catching. Ray Posipaka, rookie slugger, first; Tony Miranda, short; and Billy DeRoker, third, appear certain at the moment. Rookies Aviotte and Steele are battling for second. Luther Tucker, all-star catcher with Bluefield, W. Va., will bear the brunt of the behind-the-plate work. Linquist and Bob Fortman, last year in Class A ball, lead the pitchers. I o l o w e d by a bevy of promising rookies, Mike Garone, secured through Washington, Ty Brazier (301) with Greenville, S. C. are the outfielders with Pete Combs, a newcomer.

Jackson is making time with a limited complement of players in camp, pending receipt of discards from Little Rock and other Detroit affiliates. Anse Moore, veteran of six years in AAA leagues, first; Bobby Adams, with Greenville before entering the service, second; Dick Monkman, (.210), third; and Bobby Mathews, short; compose the present infield. John Maroney, returned service man, and Bob Fisher are the only outfielders. Manager Doolittle will do the major part of the catching. Ed Garrett, a fine looking lefty, who won 15-8 with Decatur (MOV), and Irving Boim (4-6) for Greenville in '52, compose the present pitching staff.

Over at Hot Springs Skipper Shetter has been cracking the whip over his Bathers, despite the fact that uncertainty has clouded their franchise. If anything, it has served to make the players work even harder. Only five are back from the tall end outfit, but show definite improvement. They are Bob Passarella, (.221), second; Clarence (Babe) Tuckey (.271); Jackie Bales (220), catcher, and pitchers Ed Baski (4-6) and Wayne Parks (3610). Shetter, who was with the club for the first 10 days of the 1952 season and batted .291, will be at first. Lucas Lerman, a slick fielder, rounds out the infield. Martin, signed by Shetter after his dispute and subsequent release at Greenville, will be in center. He batted .250 for Greenville (S. C.). Two Arkansasans, John Greenway (Paron), and John Trucks (Pine Bluff) are due to flank with him in the outer garden. Three rookie pitchers, Guy Cook (Hot Springs); Ken Femtem (Chicago), and Johny Hicks (Pine Bluff), have caught the Skipper's eye.

No definite word has been received at this late hour on the playing personnel of the Pine Bluff Judges, who will be assigned from St. Louis Browns' minor league camp at Thomsville, Ga. It is unlikely that many will be held over from the 1952 Judge edition, if past policy means anything.

Centenary Golf Team Trounces Northeast Club

Northeast State's golfers dropped their second match of the season here Friday afternoon, losing to the Centenary Gents by a score of 17-12 to 1/2. Harold Woods, of Monroe, scored the 1/2 point for the local collegians.

This is the second year of organization for the Indian divot diggers, sponsored by Jerry Rust, instructor in commerce at Northeast State. Other matches planned this spring are with Northwestern, Louisiana College and perhaps Spring Hill College of Mobile, Ala.

Results of the Centenary contest (Gent players listed first) follow: Claude Debaux, 2 1/4, Harold Woods 1/2, George Farrow 3, Larry Tucker 0, Johnny Walcott 3, Ed Plonsky 0, Ed Jolly 3, Johnny Johnson 0.

WITH SEVEN NO-HITTERS to his credit, Don Brocato (above), Gilbert High School senior, is regarded as a prime prospect to a baseball career. He notched No. 7 of his high school career Friday in blanking Ogden High without giving up a hit or walking a batter. Young Brocato, whose father, Joe, was a pitcher before him, weighs 190 pounds, is six-foot-four tall and already is considered about the best athlete Gilbert High has ever turned out.

Ferriday loses To Cathedral Hi Of Natchez, 9-4

FERRIDAY, La., April 18 (Special) — Cathedral High School's Greenies of Natchez, behind the effective hurling of Lefty Sammy Eldt defeated the Ferriday High School Bulldogs 9 to 4 at Liberty Park Wednesday night.

Ferriday lefthander Bo Graves allowed one hit less than Eldt, but 10 wild pitches and five hit batsmen hurt him.

Graves was especially wild in the first inning when Cathedral tallied six runs on two hits, three walks, a hit batsman, two errors and four wild pitches.

The six-run first inning proved to be enough for a victory, but Cathedral was threatened in the third when Ferriday put together a walk, a single and a triple for three runs.

Ferriday opened the game with one run in the top of the first on James "Red" McNew's double and Bobby Harmon's single.

Ferriday scored three in the top of the third, but the Greenies wiped away the advantage with a two-run third which ended the night's scoring.

Jack Curtis, Jungle Boy Wrestle Feature Bout

In the feature wrestling match at Kallio's Arena Tuesday night, Jungle Boy returns in a 90 minute time limit, two falls to win match against popular Jack Curtis; and the semi-final, also two falls to win, but with an hour limit, pits George Curtis against his adversary of several weeks back, Kentuckian Don Martin, fighting out of Shreveport.

During the tag team tussles of the past two weeks, Jack Curtis has had a rough time when he was grappling with the ring-wise Jungle Boy, and at no time in either of these events, did the popular Curtis pin his long-haired adversary. In fact, every time the two were squared off, Jungle Boy managed to get the best of Jack, even defeating the elder Curtis in the first fall of their first match two Tuesday's ago, by applying his favorite hold, a hangman's noose, and dropping Jack to the mat. Later, in the third fall, George Curtis was bounced in and out of the ring by the same TV grappler, giving the latter, and his partner, "Irish Jack" Kelly, the match. Last week, though Jungle Boy failed to pin Jack, he did make George a victim again, and was treating both Curtises very disrespectfully when referee Bill Barney disqualified him.

Their match Tuesday should be a natural, and if Jack can avoid the Jungle lad's hearty arm-stomps and hangman's hold, he should be able to apply enough question-mark tosses, or even a pile-driver, to hand the famous bushy - top a crowd - pleasing drubbing.

Wrestling fans will remember the vicious match between George Curtis and Martin, when the latter, subbing for injured Raoul Lopez, proved to be a villain of the first order, in addition to a top-notch wrestler. Plenty of fast action and excitement is promised in this match, with George capable of taking care of himself against any illegal tactics or skill Martin displays.

Rookies, Newcomers Hold Keys In Cotton States

52-Year-Old Loop Poised For 38th Season Tuesday

By J. P. FRIEND

PLYTHEVILLE, Ark., April 18 (Special) — The Cotton States League opens its gates for the 38th time during a 52-year span Tuesday night with newcomers and rookies holding the key to strength and success.

With the maximum number of allowable veterans reduced to six, the eight managers, five of them making their loop debuts, have been kept busier than usual this spring locating and lining up suitable players bearing limited service or less classification. Their problems were made more difficult by the fact that 10 vets were possible in '52, and many leagues are resorting to the use of less experienced performers, too.

The managerial picture itself isn't complete. Harold Martin, secured through Greenville, N. C., to lead the Greenville Bucks, quit in a huff the day spring training was begun. Charles Lindquist, veteran pitcher who accompanied Martin to their new assignment, was named temporary skipper, pending possible help from the St. Louis Cardinals. In event the Red Bird management is unable to send a qualified leader, General Manager Bill Maughn indicated that Lindquist could keep the job.

Other managers who are making their league bows include: Bill Adair, El Dorado; Vernon (Moose) Shetter, Hot Springs; Marland (Duke) Doolittle, Jackson; Wayne Tucker, Natchez, and Frank Lucchesi, Pine Bluff.

Tommy Davis returns to Meridian in an effort to keep the championship which the Millers won last year flying atop their mast, Charley Harrington, completely recovered from a severe bruising mid-way of the '52 campaign, gets his sophomore managerial assignment with the Monroe Sports. They finished fourth last season, after copping the flag in 1951.

Even though the openers are just a few days away, question marks and uncertainty surround most of the lineups. This is particularly true at Jackson, Natchez and Greenville, who have working agreements with clubs of higher classification and must wait until their benefactors can determine their own immediate needs before helping others.

El Dorado and Monroe appear to be all set for the lid liftings, though still on the lookout for likely material. Skipper Adair received quite a boost to his Oiler cause when Montgomery optioned the fleet Bill Carr, (.257), infielder. He likely will take third to work with Jimmy Morgan (.251) ss; Jim Cummings, a newcomer, at first, and the chief at second, Bill Brightwell (.286) is the No. 1 catcher. In the outfield will be Pel Austin (.269), Jay Jeffries (.222), and possibly Joe Slaber, brother of Charles (Chuck) Slaber (13-14), who heads the pitching staff. Other hurling returnees are: Bill Lovallo, (1-3); Bob Ford (9-5), and Clyde Baldwin, who had a 10-13 record with Clarksdale in 1950.

Harrington has built his current Sport edition around George Andrews (.260), shortstop; Nelson Daehn (.296), Ray Coss, who was with the club in 1950 and recently discharged from service, outfielders; Ray Rogers, catcher, and Marvin (Hoppy) Hatcher, pitcher, who had a 11-11 mound record in '52, one of the wins a no-hitter. Harrington (.271), is ticketed for third. Adrian Burks, who made football history with Baylor, has nailed down first. Freddie Harriet may start at second. J. T. Jaynes, a .324 thumper with Union City, Tenn., (Kitty) last is the other outfielder. Reinforcements are likely from Shreveport and Augusta, Ga., if needed.

Meridian is counting on a strong pitching staff to offset some possible weaker spots. Bobby Harrison, who won his first 15 games for 2 new league records and wound up with 24-5 in 1952, Joe Kopach (17-12; Hal Knight (3-2); Beverly Gross (11-6) are holdovers. They also have Allan Rogers, a nine-game winner from Panama City. The veteran Bill Lewis (.286) will be back behind the plate, assisted by Irving Giordanengo (.233) who also may double in the outfield. Three infield spots are settled: Ray Krupa (.256), first; Bobby Foster (.245), second; and Hugh Glaze (.304), third. Gene Pompeilia (.287) and Lindy Callahan, ex-Ole Miss star who was with Panama City last season, are the other outfielders, besides Manager Davis.

Only the infield and catching are complete at Natchez. Don Allen (.335), defending batting champion, will be at first; Skipper Tucker, second; Joe Garcia (.170), short, and George Ruzina (.295), third. Joe Arnold Pruitt, a rookie, is the leading receiver. Roy Jayne, who posted a 7-8 season record, but won five games in the playoff, and Frank Healey, veteran hurler who returns after two years, are the only pitchers who have earned their jobs. Birmingham is due to send some aid by starting time.

Greenville has come a long way after a from-taw start, with the inner defense and outfield all but determined, along with the catching. Ray Pospaka, rookie slugger, first; Tony Miranda, short; and Billy DeRoker, third, appear certainities at the moment. Rookies Aviotte and Steele are battling for second. Luther Tucker, all-star catcher with Bluefield, W. Va., will bear the brunt of the behind-the-plate work. Linquist and Bob Fortman, last year in Class A ball, lead the pitchers, followed by a bevy of promising rookies. Mike Garone, secured through Washington, Ty Brazier (.301) with Greenville, S. C. are the outfielders with Pete Combs, a newcomer.

Jackson is making time with a limited complement of players in camp, pending receipt of discards from Little Rock and other Detroit affiliates. Anse Moore, veteran of six years in AAA leagues, first; Bobby Adams, with Greenville before entering the service, second; Dick Monkman, (.210), third; and Bobby Mathews, short; compose the present infield. John Maroney, present service man, and Bob Fisher are the only outfielders. Manager Doolittle will do the major part of the catching. Ed Garrett, a fine looking lefty, who won 15-8 with Decatur (MOV), and Irving Boim (4-6) for Greenville in '52, compose the present pitching staff.

Over at Hot Springs Skipper Shetter has been cracking the whip over his Bathers, despite the fact that uncertainty has clouded their franchise. If anything, it has served to make the players work even harder. Only five are back from the tail end outfit, but show definite improvement. They are Bob Passarella, (.221), second; Clarence (Babe) Tuckey (.271); Jackie Bales (.220), catcher, and pitchers Ed Baski (4-6) and Wayne Parks (3610). Shelter, who was with the club for the first 10 days of the 1952 season and batted .291, will be at first. Lucas Lerman, a slick fielder, rounds out the infield. Martin, signed by Shelter after his dispute and subsequent release at Greenville, will be in center. He batted .250 for Greenville (S. C.). Two Arkansans, John Greenway (Paron), and John Trucks (Pine Bluff) are due to flank with him in the outer garden. Three rookie pitchers, Guy Cook (Hot Springs); Ken Femtem (Chicago), and Johnny Hicks (Pine Bluff), have caught the Skipper's eye.

No definite word has been received at this late hour on the playing personnel of the Pine Bluff Judges, who will be assigned from St. Louis Browns' minor league camp at Thomsville, Ga. It is unlikely that many will be held over from the 1952 Judge edition, if past policy means anything.

WITH SEVEN NO-HITTERS to his credit, Don Brocato (above), Gilbert High Schol senior, is regarded as a prime prospect to a baseball career. He notched No. 7 of his high school career Friday in blanking Ogden High without giving up a hit or walking a batter. Young Brocato, whose father, Joe, was a pitcher before him, weighs 190 pounds, is six-foot-four tall and already is considered about the best athlete Gilbert High has ever turned out.

"We expect this winter's slate to be our most attractive in history," Baumbach said.

Previously, Tulane accepted an invitation to the annual Dixie Classic Dec. 28-30 at Raleigh, N. C., and will join Seton Hall, Oregon State, Navy, North Carolina State, Wake Forest, Duke and North Carolina in that tournament.

Coach Cliff Wells expects his squad to return intact for the next season. The Green Wave placed second in the Southeastern Conference standings last season.

Ferriday Loses To Cathedral Hi Of Natchez, 9-4

FERRIDAY, La., April 18 (Special) — Cathedral High School's Greenies of Natchez, behind the effective hurling of Lefty Sammy Eldt defeated the Ferriday High School Bulldogs 9 to 4 at Liberty Park Wednesday night.

Ferriday lefthander Bo Graves allowed one hit less than Eldt, but 10 wild pitches and five hit batsmen hurt him.

Graves was especially wild in the first inning when Cathedral tallied six runs on two hits, three walks, a hit batsman, two errors and four wild pitches.

The six-run first inning proved to be enough for a victory, but Cathedral was threatened in the third when Ferriday put together a walk, a single and a triple for three runs.

Ferriday opened the game with one run in the top of the first on James "Red" McNew's double and Bobby Harmon's single.

Ferriday scored three in the top of the third, but the Greenies wiped away the advantage with a two-run third which ended the night's scoring.

Jack Curtis, Jungle Boy Wrestle Feature Bout

In the feature wrestling match at Kallio's Arena Tuesday night, Jungle Boy returns in a 90 minute time limit, two falls to win match against popular Jack Curtis; and the semi-final, also two falls to win, but with an hour limit, pits George Curtis against his adversary of several weeks back, Kentuckian Don Martin, fighting out of Shreveport.

During the tag team tussles of the past two weeks, Jack Curtis has had a rough time when he was grappling with the ring-wise Jungle Boy, and at no time in either of these events, did the popular Curtis pin his long-haired adversary. In fact, every time the two were squared off, Jungle Boy managed to get the best of Jack, even defeating the elder Curtis in the first fall of their first match two Tuesday's ago, by applying his favorite hold, a hangman's noose, and dropping Jack to the mat. Later, in the third fall, George Curtis was bounced in and out of the ring by the same TV grappler, giving the latter, and his partner, "Irish Jack" Kelly, the match. Last week, though Jungle Boy failed to pin Jack, he did make George a victim again, and was treating both Curtises very disrespectfully when referee Bill Barney disqualified him.

Their match Tuesday should be a natural, and if Jack can avoid the Jungle lad's hearty arm-stomps and hangman's hold, he should be able to apply enough question-mark tosses, or even a pile-driver, to hand the famous bushy-top a crowd-pleasing drubbing.

Wrestling fans will remember the vicious match between George Curtis and Martin, when the latter, subbing for injured Raoul Lopez, proved to be a villain of the first order, in addition to a top-notch wrestler. Plenty of fast action and excitement is promised in this match, with George capable of taking care of himself against any illegal tactics or skill Martin displays.

LA. OIL AND GAS NEWS

STATE REPORT

BY HAROLD HART
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—The long, fertile Arkansas Valley literally is teeming with a re-surfacing interest in natural gas production.

Some of the nation's biggest oil companies have leased more than 1½ million acres in that area, according to State Geologist Norman F. Williams.

Durbin Bond of Little Rock, president of Durbin Bond and Co., independent oil drillers, said "Sure it's a big thing."

"The big companies are moving in there because they have a chance of getting oil and if they don't the gas will cover drilling costs," Bond pointed out.

Bond said there is a tremendous market for all gas that can be produced. Pipelines move it to the big eastern market. Also, liquid petroleum gas is bottled for rural consumption.

The big three oil companies active in the Valley now are Carter, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, Continental and Gulf. Each has leased over a quarter of a million acres, said Williams.

Other firms in there include Murphy Oil Co., of El Dorado, Ark., Arkansas-Oklahoma; Arkansas Western Gas Company of Fayetteville, Ark. and two primary Oklahoma firms, Blackwell Oil and Gas and Deep Rock.

The Valley forms the floor for two mountain ranges — the Ozarks and the Ouachitas. It takes in the west central part of the state.

Southcentral Arkansas long has been the state's primary oil producing area.

Gas production in the Valley is nothing new, Williams said. "Western Arkansas probably has produced gas longer than any area west of the Mississippi."

One of the pioneers in development of gas reserves in the Arkansas Valley was John C. Branner, former Arkansas state geologist and later president of Standard Oil.

The Valley was known to have been gas producing as far back as 1889. It became economically productive about 1902 with discovery of the Massard Prairie Field and the Mansfield Field on the outskirts of Ft. Smith.

After 51 years, the Massard Field was capable of producing about 200 million cubic feet of gas in 1951.

L. G. Ayres, geologist for Bond, says "the entire feature is that no investment is made in expensive exploration surveys," adding:

"The Valley is rife with scores of untested rolling anticlines, which form the traps for the accumulation of gas. It is one type of structural trap that the petroleum geologist searches for. In the Arkansas Valley there is no search for structures as such. They are there for all to see and survey. Any one of them might produce."

Here is the picture as Ayres sees it:

There are some 800 seismograph crews throughout the world today, all searching for sub-surface or curved structures or traps. These surveys are expensive and slow. To engage a seismic crew for a month will cost the operator approximately $15,000. But in the Arkansas Valley nearly all the exploration expense can be eliminated. The problem in this province is a matter of drilling and testing the scores of choice structural features.

Development lagged through the years, Ayres said, because the Valley was a strange and nearly all oil companies and operators, with a few exceptions. But business is picking up fast.

Williams said the Valley has the physical qualities that assure plenty of gas.

He listed those factors as conducive rock sources for oil and gas.

Louisiana's 2nd Picture Station Takes Air Today

BATON ROUGE, La., April 18—UP—Louisiana's second television station, WAFB-TV, will begin scheduled broadcasts at 1 p.m. Sunday with special ceremonies in which Gov. Robert F. Kennon is expected to participate.

The station began test-pattern broadcasting from its newly-completed ultra-high frequency station on Channel 28.

Tom Gibbons, general manager, said that in addition to the governor, others taking part in the opening ceremonies will be Jesse Webb Jr., Mayor-President of East Baton Rouge, and Gen. Troy H. Middleton, president of Louisiana State University.

The new station has a 500-foot tower — some 50 feet taller than the state capitol and the tallest man-made structure in the state — from which it will radiate programs expected to be seen clearly for 45 miles.

The station will deliver 17,500 watts of effective radiated power now and there are plans to increase the power output later. Programs are planned initially from 4:40 to 10:30 p.m. A number of "live" telecasts will be included.

New studios have been completed for the TV operations and a staff assembled for the programming.

Louisiana's only other TV station is WDSU-TV in New Orleans.

LA. OIL AND GAS NEWS

STATE REPORT

BY HAROLD HART
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—The long, fertile Arkansas Valley literally is teeming with a re-surg-ing interest in natural gas pro-duction.

Some of the nation's biggest oil companies have leased more than 1 1/2 million acres in that area, ac-cording to State Geologist Norman F. Williams.

Durbin Bond of Little Rock, pres-ident of Durbin Bond and Co., in-dependent oil drillers, said "Sure it's a big thing."

"The big companies are moving in there because they have a chance of getting oil and if they don't the gas will cover drilling costs," Bond pointed out.

Bond said there is a tremendous market for all gas that can be produced. Pipelines move it to the big eastern market. Also, liquid petroleum gas is bottled for rural consumption.

The big three oil companies ac-tive in the Valley now are Carter, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, Continental and Gulf. Each has leased over a quarter of a million acres, said Williams.

Other firms in there include Murphy Oil Co., of El Dorado, Ark., Arkansas-Oklahoma; Arkan-sas - Western Gas Company of Fayetteville, Ark., and two pri-mary Oklahoma firms, Blackwell Oil and Gas and Deep Rock.

The Valley forms the floor for two mountain ranges — the Ozarks and the Ouachitas. It takes in the west central part of the state.

Southcentral Arkansas long has been the state's primary oil pro-ducting area.

Gas production in the Valley is nothing new. Williams said "West-ern Arkansas probably has pro-duced gas longer than any area west of the Mississippi."

One of the pioneers in develop-ment of gas reserves in the Arkan-sas Valley was John C. Bran-ner, former Arkansas state geolo-gist and later president of Stan-ford University.

The Valley was known to have been gas productive as far back as 1889. It became economically productive about 1902 with discov-ery of the Massard Prairie Field and the Mansfield Field on the outskirts of Ft. Smith.

After 51 years, the Massard Field was capable of producing about 200 million cubic feet of gas in 1951.

L. G. Ayres, geologist for Bond, says "the enticing feature is that no investment is made in expen-sive exploration surveys," adding: "The Valley is rife with scores

One Producer Is Brought In During Week

Of untested rolling anticlines, which form the traps for the accu-mulation of gas. It is one type of structural trap that the petroleum geologist searches for. In the Ar-kansas Valley there is no search for structures as such. They are there for all to see and survey. Any one of them might produce."

Here is the picture as Ayres sees it:

There are some 800 seismograph crews throughout the world today, all searching for sub-surface or al-luvial structures or traps. These cur-ried structures are expensive and slow. To engage a seismic crew for a month will cost the operator ap-proximately $15,000. But in the Arkansas Valley nearly all the ex-ploration expense can be eliminat-ed. The problem in this province is a matter of drilling and testing the scores of choice structural fea-tures.

Development lagged through the years, Ayres said, because the Val-ley was new and strange to nearly all oil companies and operators, with a few exceptions. But business is picking up fast.

Williams said the Valley has the physical qualities that assure plen-ty of gas.

He listed those factors as con-ducive rock sources for oil and gas.

LSU To Be Host To Engineer Group

BATON ROUGE, La., April 18.—Louisiana State University will be host to chemical engineering students and professors from 10 Southern states Wednesday for a conference of student chapters of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Purpose of the conference is to promote interest among students in the professional aspects of chemical engineering.

Bingo Party Is Huge Success

As is the custom this time of year, the Business and Professional Women held their annual Benefit Bingo party in the Missouri Pacific Booster's Hall, last week. The affair was a tremendous success both in good times and an addition to the funds for the building of a hut at the Girl Scout camp, which is the clubs project for the year.

Mr. O. L. Miles was bingo caller. His style added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Twin City merchants were most generous in the donations of approximately sixty-five prizes, given to the bingo winners. Chances were sold on a hat given by Mrs. Earl Coats at Silversteins and a cake donated by Florence Powers.

Mrs. Bessie Skinner, finance chairman and her committee composed of Mrs. Helea Blanchard and Mrs. Mildred Roberts, in charge of prizes; Mrs. Myrtle Porter, cold drinks; Mrs. Laura Slaton, bingo cards; Mrs. Bessie Hixon and Mrs. Thelma Gunn were in charge of tables. This committee with Mrs. Skinner were largely responsible for such a successful party.

Southern Gardener

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Those little devils, the plant lice, or aphids are back to pester us again! It is a good thing we do not see them through a microscope, for we would certainly think we had begun "seeing things" because these strange looking creatures are actually pink, green, black, grey, red, brown, yellow and . . . would you believe it — lavender. If you ever do see one through even a small microscope, "pine elephants" are not in it! Aphids cause a lot of trouble for which they do not always get credit. They give off a sticky honey dew and then the various molds or mildews come along and propagate themselves on this sugary stuff and cover up some foliage like cape jasmine leaves with a sooty mold which completely hides them from view. The same thing happens on crepe myrtle and on various other foliage.

Camellia leaves, rose pyracantha, flowering peach and cherry, flowering quinces, calenduals and chrysanthemums — all these are affected by the different kinds of aphids or plant lice. Not only do they suck the juices of the plants, but they keep adding more and more sugary juices for the molds to live on until the covering which the molds make are sometimes as thick as the leaves themselves!

Fortunately, it is fairly easy to get rid of aphids, but one does have to keep at it. The cool spring weather we have in this part of the world is just exactly to all kinds of plant lice. Unfortunately, the ants use aphids as their "cows" and will carry them about from plant to plant just exactly as people pasture cows. You can see the ants stroking the aphids to stimulate them to produce the desired sugary solution and carrying them about up and down the most succulent stems the ants can find. However, nicotine sulphate in several forms will do away with aphids and save us the trouble of dusting with sulphur to get rid of the molds and mildews they prepare for so perfectly.

Black leaf 40 is the best known form of nicotine sulphate for use against the aphids. Some gardeners are very adept at spraying the pests which give them trouble and know that almost any good "contact" insecticide will get the aphids. Pyrethrum or rotenone are both good for this, and so is a chemical called hexethyltetraphosphate. Use two tablespoonfuls of a 50 per cent solution in three gallons of water and spray it on with special attention to getting the under sides of the foliage where many aphids will be found. If you

Synope Plantation Setting For Garden Club Meeting

Members of Monroe Garden Club enjoyed true southern hospitality when they journeyed to Synope Plantation for their April meeting. Meeting time was delayed while members spent a delightful time going from room to room of the charming home while Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, who restored it, and members of her family told interesting facts about the house and grounds. It is believed to be over 125 years old. The architecture of the house has been changed very little and the original columns, shutters and even some of the window panes are still in use. From the spacious yard in which many giant oaks stand the perfect architectural balance of the house is a pleasing sight. A well, which stands near the covered walk between the house and garage, held iced cokes.

Mrs. Reynolds had arranged flowers for several vantage points and they were quite beautiful. A large arrangement made with several types of yellow flowers sat upon the built-up fireplace in the playroom. An all white arrangement made of calla lilies and iris was used on an old colonial dresser.

Members finally made their way to the yard where Mrs. E. F. Dalton, the new club president introduced Dr. Robert S. Reich who is assistant professor in charge of landscape design curriculum at L. S. U. His lecture was on patios. He said the patios began during the time of the Moors and have been used by every generation since that time. With each age people have changed them to suit their needs.

He pointed out that many things make a good surfacing for patios. A new stain is available for concrete which is effective and durable. Slides were used to show many different types of beautiful patios. He spoke of different methods to give enclosure and partial enclosure. Patios may be enriched by the use of pools, flowers for color and sculpture. He brought out the important features of built-in furniture, because it is stationary it is ever ready for use.

After Dr. Reich's most interesting talk, guests moved to the dining room, where delicious fresh strawberry punch and other refreshments were served.

Serving with Mrs. Dalton as officers for the new year are: President-elect, Mrs. Vagi Rivers; vice-president, Mrs. J. B. Thornhill; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Wilds, Jr.; secretary, Mrs. James Brothers; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Duncan Smith.

Other committee chairmen are: Program chairman, Mrs. Dewitt Milam; program committee, Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher, Mrs. A. S. Adults Return To Childhood For Gay Party

Rolling back the years to childhood days again, a group of close friends of Mary Lee Barbee surprised her with a child's birthday party Friday night in the home of Miss Juanita Porter. Dressed in pinafores, rompers, and other childish attire, the little girls gathered around the surprised Mary Lee with the old time song of "Happy Birthday to You," then proceeded to play the games that a twelve-year-old might enjoy.

The prize for identifying childhood photographs flashed on the wall by a Balopticon operated by Dorothy Younse, was won by Mary Lee Barbee — sticks of gum, which were distributed among the children. Emma Lee Short received a package of balloons in the balloon blowing contest; Tony Veazey won the giant all-day sucker in the game of Maryle, a la Hearts, and Una Lee Wallace the booby, a dressed-up bottle of pop.

After the twelve birthday candles were lighted, and the beautifully decorated birthday cake cut and served with punch, the birthday gifts were opened. Flashlight pictures were taken throughout the evening.

Those taking part in this memorable occasion were Mary Lee Barbee, Herndon Smith, Julia Wossman, Eunice Black, Lillian

If your fabric lamp shade is washable, you can clean it by plunging it into a deep tubful of warm suds; repeat in clean suds if necessary. Use a soft brush or a sudsy sponge on spots. Rinse immediately in clean water or use a spray. Wipe with a turkish towel and dry in a current of air or near an electric fan. The secret of washing a shade successfully this way is to work quickly.

Southern Gardener

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Those little devils, the plant lice or aphids are back to pester us again! It is a good thing we do not see them through a microscope, for we would certainly think we had begun "seeing things" because these strange looking creatures are actually pink, green, black, grey, red, brown, yellow and . . . would you believe it — lavender. If you ever do see one through even a small microscope, "pine elephants" are not in it! Aphids cause a lot of trouble for which they do not always get credit. They give off a sticky honey dew and then the various molds or mildews come along and propagate themselves on this sugary stuff and cover up some foliage like cape jasmine leaves with a sooty mold which completely hides them from view. The same thing happens on crepe myrtle and on various other foliage.

Camellia leaves, rose pyracantha, flowering peach and cherry, flowering quinces, calendulas and chrysanthemums — all these are affected by the different kinds of aphids or plant lice. Not only do they suck the juices of the plants, but they keep adding more and more sugary juices for the molds to live on until the covering which the molds make are sometimes as thick as the leaves themselves!

Fortunately, it is fairly easy to get rid of aphids, but one does have to keep at it. The cool spring weather we have in this part of the world is just exactly to all kinds of plant lice. Unfortunately, the ants use aphids as their "cows" and will carry them about from plant to plant just exactly as people pasture cows. You can see the ants stroking the aphids to stimulate them to produce the desired sugary solution and carrying them about up and down the most succulent stems the ants can find. However, nicotine sulphate in several forms will do away with aphids and save us the trouble of dusting with sulphur to get rid of the molds and mildews they prepare for so perfectly.

Black leaf 40 is the best known form of nicotine sulphate for use against the aphids. Some gardeners are very adept at spraying the pests which give them trouble and know that almost any good "contact" insecticide will get the aphids. Pyrethrum or rotenone are both good for this, and so is a chemical called Hexethyltetrathosphate. Use two tablespoonfuls of a 50 per cent solution in three gallons of water and spray it on with special attention to getting the under sides of the foliage where many aphids will be found. If you

Members of Monroe Garden Club enjoyed true southern hospitality when they journeyed to Synope Plantation for their April meeting. Meeting time was delayed while members spent a delightful time going from room to room of the charming home while Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, who restored it, and members of her family told interesting facts about the house and grounds. It is believed to be over 125 years old. The architecture of the house has been changed very little and the original columns, shutters and even some of the window panes are still in use. From the spacious yard in which many giant oaks stand the perfect architectural balance of the house is a use the old tried and true nicotine sulphate, dissolve three ounces of laundry soap in three gallons of water and then add one tablespoonful of nicotine sulphate.

The aphids will not usually bother camellias after the foliage is grown, but they can do a lot of damage while the leaves are still tender. Some gardeners use an oil spray (highly refined or summer type) for whitely types of aphids on their gardenias or cape jasmines. It should have been used some weeks back, but you can spray with it right now and again in a month. It is impossible to reach to the tops of large crepe myrtles with a spray solution unless you have regular tree equipment, but you can spray the shrub type of crepe myrtle effectively, and it is these lower types which come nearer the eye level anyway.

The same is true of pyracantha, quinces and the flowering peaches and cherries. At least one does not wish to have to look at the sooty foliage of these if they are anywhere near a sitting terrace, and so it is worth the trouble to spray them, too. A large bush covered with aphids will soon be covered with ants busy carrying them to your snapdragons or just anything which happens to appeal to their appetite.

If you have had trouble with aphids on the foliage of your hawthorn trees, you can spray for the aphids with Black Leaf 40. English hawthorns are very subject to a leaf blight also, and both can be taken care of by adding one teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate to each gallon of a solution of Bordeaux mixture. Do not use Bordeaux at full strength, but read the directions for spraying Irish potatoes and make your solution just one half as strong. This is a wise policy for all of your spraying with Bordeaux after the leaves are out on plants.

Camellia fans will need to watch their plants from now on for the dreaded "die - back." Cut off all the wood that dies just as soon as you see that it is no longer alive and burn it. Then spray right away with weak Bordeaux. Bordeaux is also effective for combatting corky spot and the many kinds of leaf spots which damage the foliage and distress camellia lovers so greatly after the leaves are grown.

When you wish to exhibit a specimen flower next year, these spotted up leaves will make it difficult to find just that perfect foliage which show flowers must have with them to be exhibited at all. Red spiders can spoil the looks of foliage, too, so have the dusting sulphur ready when that hot dry time comes around in late April and again in May and then, off and on all summer.

Mineral oil will take care of the peony scale which infests camellias so easily. It seems just to come from nowhere, so keep your eye on the undersides of the leaves and on the twigs. If you can destroy a small patch as soon as it gets started, the scale cannot spread over the rest of the plant. Of course, oil spray also does away with all the other kinds of scale: camellia scale, red scale, tea scale, San Jose scale, and the others. Azaleas may already be getting lacebugs on them and can be sprayed, also, with oil sprays to prevent the demoralized appearance they get after lacebugs have chewed them to mere silhouettes of their former selves.

This is a good time to check up on the acidity of the soil in your azalea beds. How does the foliage look? Is there any of that yellowing foliage which indicates the need for attention?

Alumnae Of Phi Mu Meet

There will be an organizational meeting of the Phi Mu Alumnae Monday morning at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. C. U. Johnson, 504 Forsythe Ave. All interested alumnae in this area please call Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Jr., 2-2669.

If your fabric lamp shade is washable, you can clean it by plunging it into a deep tubful of warm suds; repeat in clean suds if necessary. Use a soft brush or a sudsy sponge on spots. Rinse immediately in clean water or use a spray. Wipe with a turkish towel and dry in a current of air or near an electric fan. The secret of washing a shade successfully this way is to work quickly.

Banquet Honors 25th Anniversary

Over 100 Rotarians and their wives attended a banquet celebrating the 25th anniversary of the club last week in Ferriday.

Henry Goudchaux, president of the club presided and Pat Patterson, Baton Rouge, La., entertainer, who was scheduled to appear, could not attend.

The president's table was decorated with a centerpiece of white orange blossoms, stock and glads and the flanking tables were arranged with silver baskets of sweetpeas, roses, pansies and fern.

The meeting was called to order by President Goudchaux and after the invocation by Rev. Dick Griffin, pastor of the First Baptist Church, the president the welcoming address.

Following the dinner the program, under the direction of Prof. Hugh A. Bateman, was presented in the high school auditorium. Lloyd Love was master of ceremonies and called on Rev. Griffin to lead in community singing. This was followed by a solo by Gloria Brocato, accompanied by Opal Stone. The mother singers of the P-T. A., rendered several selections accompanied by Rotary Ann Chris Taylor. A quartet composed of Dianne Cross, Ruth Warren, Shirley Chapman, and Beth Bass, was most entertaining. Mrs. Pat White, district deputy grand matron of District No. 6, was honored this week at the regular meeting of the Dixie Chapter No. 179 Order of the Eastern Star.

The chapter room was beautifully decorated with many huge baskets of red roses and greenery, topped by enormous red net bows. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Nina Evans, worthy matron and other officers of Dixie Chapter.

As Mrs. White was escorted for introduction, Mr. E. M. Wooten at the piano played "Only A Rose." After Mrs. White was introduced and given a most gracious welcome, Mr. Wooten then sang "When Your Hair Has Turned To Silver." Other guests welcomed were: Mrs. Birdie Mae Mulhern, past grand matron, Mrs. Arrah Culver, associate grand matron, Henry O. Hartman, associate grand patron, Mrs. Ona Mae Laferty, grand warder, Mrs. Rea Gleason, district grand matron of District No. 13, Oak Grove, La., Mrs. Sybil Fullerton, district deputy grand matron of District No. 7, Georgetown, La., Grand Chapter Order of the Eastern Star.

There were 23 present and past worthy matrons and patrons introduced and visitors from thirteen different chapters. Several cars came from Rayville, Georgetown, Bastrop, Sterling, West Monroe and Columbia.

After a most beneficial and inspiring address by the district deputy grand matron a special feature was presented in her behalf. Mrs. Dorthie Schmidt, Mrs. Myra Hessick, Mrs. Dottie Bass, Mrs. Mildred Henderson, Mrs. Callie McMullen and Mrs. Helen Barber appropriately presented Mrs. White with two beautiful red roses each.

Mrs. Manell Neild then pinned a white satin bow on the dozen roses and presented Mrs. White with a cream soup spoon from the chapter, afterwards the group sang "One Dozen Roses."

The guests were then invited into the banquet room where delicious refreshments were served from a beautifully decorated table. Red roses were used as a centerpiece and tall white tapers sprinkled with gold gloved on either side in crystal holders. Mrs. Lillian Keller presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. H. K. Touchstone Guest Speaker At Mer Rouge Club

Mrs. H. K. Touchstone of Monroe was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Mer Rouge Garden Club. Her topic was "Florabunda and Polyanthus Roses for Color in Your Garden." She gave a most interesting and informative talk on the subject. She stressed the fact that there were over three hundred varieties of these roses and due to their adaptability, easy culture, range or size and color and length and profusion of their blooming, they were becoming very popular with all types of gardeners for mass effects, borders etc.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Davenport, presided over the brief business session. Mrs. H. L. Herron, chairman of the cemetery committee reported that the road leading to the cemetery had been graveled by the police jury. Also that a lawnmower had been purchased and the Garden Club and village of Mer Rouge will sponsor the upkeep of the cemetery. Mrs. Davenport reported that 100 bulbs had been donated for the cemetery and would be planted this week.

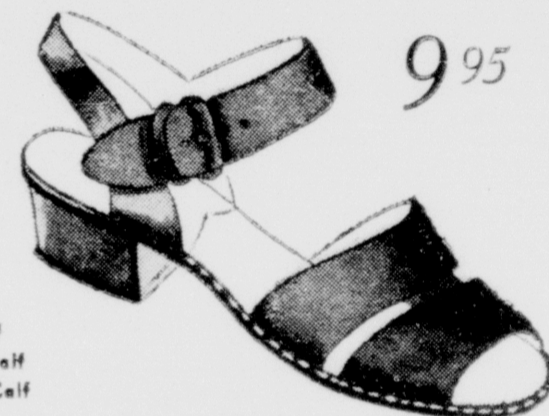

The nominating committee gave an incomplete report and the installation of officers was postponed until a later date. The May meeting was discussed and it was decided to make an out of town garden tour, instead of the usual home gardens. Haphazard Plantation at Ferriday, the home of Mrs.

Mayhaw Jelly Time Is Here

"It's Mayhaw time and there will be some disappointment in jelly-making if instructions are not followed" is the advice offered by Mrs. Mildred G. Swift, with your Agricultural Extension Department.

The agent says to wash and sort mayhaws. Barely cover with water. Exact proportions are 1 cup water to 1 pound berries. Boil fruit in broad, flat-bottomed kettle and stir to keep from scorching. The time is from 20 to 25 minutes. Drain hot cooked berries at once in a bag. When dripping has almost stopped, press jelly bag to get all juice. Now put the fruit pulp back in the pan, barely cover with water and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Stir — drip this juice and mix with the first.

All juice should be given the pectin test before making jelly. Use 1 tablespoon of alcohol (wood or denatured) to one of the fruit juice. Place the alcohol in a cup or glass and gently pour into this one tablespoon of the strained and cooled juice. Mix by gently moving from side to side. Let stand for one minute. Pour slowly into a saucer. If the pectin has formed a solid mass, it will be safe to use 1 cup of sugar to 1 cup of juice. If it forms a good clot, but slightly broken at the edges, use ¾ cup of sugar to 1 cup of juice. When the alcohol fails to cause any forming of pectin it means that the juice has not enough pectin to make into jelly.

Now you are ready to make the jelly. Use 4 cups mayhaw jelly stock and 3 to 4 cups sugar. Use pectin test to determine. Add sugar to cold juice. Stir until sugar is dissolved and then bring quickly to a boil. Use a large, flat-bottomed pan that permits rapid evaporation. Never make over 6 or 8 glasses of jelly at one time.

Boil mixture rapidly until the jelly stage is reached. The jelly test is this: Dip a cold fork into the boiling juice — if, when lifted, the fork is coated with the syrup and drops remain suspended from the tines, the jelly stage has been reached.

Call our office, telephone number 3-2251 for the jelly, jam and preserve bulletin. This is a free service from your Agricultural Extension Department.

Your Problems
By ANN LANDERS

Dear Mrs. Landers: My husband's family thinks our home is Grand Central Station and walks into it without knocking any time of the night or day. My mother-in-law and her family live in the same house. She visits me four or five times a day and some member of her family (or all of them) is with us every evening. It makes it tough on me to remain cheerful and in the receiving line 24 hours a day!

They are free with their criticism and became quite enraged when I politely hinted that we would like a little privacy once in a while. Once, when I locked the door they all got mad. What should I do? —Disgusted.

They got mad, but not mad enough. Tell your husband that you said, "I do," to him, alone, that you did not intend marrying the entire family. Tell him that either the family respects your need for privacy or you will not quiet down until you move away from there. Tell the mother-in-law and the other members of her family that you love them all but that you can scarcely become acquainted with your husband or live lives of your own because of their frequent visits. Set up a time when they are welcome and ask them to respect that time. Keep the door closed at other times; lock it if necessary and let them get mad. They know you are right.

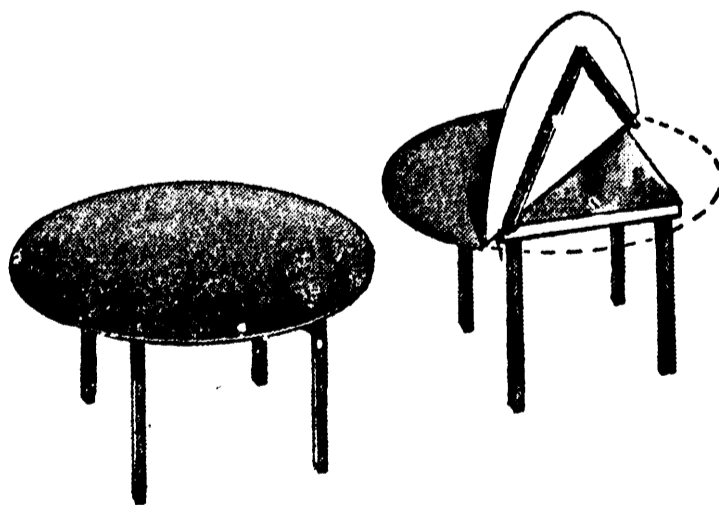

Dear Mrs. Landers: Your recent reply to a young man who was rejected by a girl because he wished to follow a boxing career makes me wonder if you could help me understand the attitude of a man I still love? Three years ago, I told him I would not marry him if he did not stop boxing and although I loved him, I refused to accept his ring.

To my certain knowledge he has never boxed since, as he does not even go to his athletic club and is not likely to do so, as he now has a responsible position. However, he has never dated me again. He is always friendly, sits near me in church, doesn't date anyone else but doesn't ask me out either. My mother and friends have varying opinions; many blame me, as the organization with which he boxed was sponsored by a church. He is now 26; I am 24. I don't know what to think or to do. —Still Wondering.

Neither of you are children and if you continue to "still wonder" and do nothing you will both be one of those sad old cases of wasted love and life. A man will often comply with a woman's request but subconsciously hate himself for submitting to her will. In time, he projects this dislike to the woman, blaming her for what he considers his weakness. If his friends and yours knew about the request and compliance, he feels he has lost face before them. Your friend still holds his head up and retains some pride in himself because you did not fully succeed; you lost him.

NEW OFFICERS — Mrs. Nancy Neyland, left, was elected state representative to the national convention and Miss Ora Beazley, right, was elected state ritualist supervisor at the state convention of the Supreme Forest Woodman Circle held recently in Lake Charles. Both are members of the local city Grove No. 288 and reside in West Monroe.

If you wait for him to do anything about it, you will be old and gray. And, since the boxing was not professional, you were wrong. Ask to see him. Go where you can talk. Tell him you feel that you were to blame for the breakup and ask him frankly if there is any chance of making amends and how he feels about you; tell him that you have never forgotten him. It will take a lot of courage but it is your only chance.

PS — Men are scarce.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it proper for an office acquaintance to congratulate a girl friend on her recent marriage even though the person was not invited to the wedding? —R.M.D.

Whooops, my dear. We never congratulate a girl on her marriage. That is almost like saying, "Weel, old kid, you made it!" (as though it weren't!). You tell a girl that you heard she was recently married and that you wish her every happiness. The invitation or lack of it has no bearing on the case. It is the man whom you congratulate "congratulations, old man, you won your girl," is the meaning there (even though she chased him unmercifully).

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.)

Girl Scout News

A backyard cookout is one of the first steps into that fascinating out of door program that Girl Scouts stress. Troop 43 found that out recently when they made camp fire stew in the backyard of their leader, Mrs. C. E. Slaughter.

The girls had their first experience with kaper charts, the Girl Scout way of dividing duties connected with cookouts or troop meetings or camping activities. Whether her job is to peel onions or dry the dishes or do a good job of stirring, a girl takes pride in it when she sees that her job is important to the whole. Incidentally, none of the stew was left over.

Mrs. Slaughter reports much enthusiasm on the part of this fly-up troop. The girls are working on Tenderfoot requirements and are planning a most impressive fly-up ceremony at Pine Wood on May 3, we hear.

The two troops, 4 and 41, that camped last week end reported the usual good times. Mrs. W. H. Pace, Mrs. R. E. Thompson and Mrs. D. T. Moseley accompanied troop 41 on the first overnight some of the girls had ever taken part in. Of course, the old times in the troop took pride in showing the new girls around the building and grounds.

This troop has recently registered nine new girls. Dolores Cawthorne, Carol Ann Crawford, Linda Daniel, Winona Head, Judith Netherland, Sandra Odum, Patricia Tarver, Becky Weems and Anna Williams.

Dale Anding, Betty Balir, Nancy Cash, Barbara Cloyd, Flora Henderson, Wilma Hesler, Millie Hislop, Kay McMillan, Lynda Mosley, Wanda Mouton, Billy Wilson, Brenda Younse, and Joan Thompson have been in the troop all year.

Of course, troop 4 is always the active, tramping, camping bunch of girls who manage to have a good time in whatever they do. Their only regret was that Betty Hines came down with measles and could not go with them. Mrs. Huckabee and Mrs. E. L. Fullin accompanied the group. Susan Austin, Sue Grover, Alice Fullin, Jo Lockhart, Juliana Hale, Judith Harrison, Marie Nelson, Judy Pou, Shirley Richardson, Jeanie Thompson and Yvonne Huckabee were the campers.

Brownies don't spend the night, but they go out to camp on Saturdays and after school and learn the fundamentals of good camping such as staying together, walking with a buddy, tasting a marshmallow, keeping camp grounds clean, and, of course, not pulling flowers or shrubs.

Troop 20, the new Brownie troop at Lexington, accompanied by leaders Mrs. Paul Neal, Mrs. W. H. McSherry, and mamas Mrs. Paul Blackmon and Mrs. W. F. Jackson went to camp Wednesday for their weekly meeting. A trip to camp always calls for food, so the girls took nosebag lunches. They also had a fire which burned to coals while they walked to the river. On their return they toasted marshmallows golden brown, then popped them between graham crackers with a piece of chocolate bar. Some - mores, the Scouts call these sandwiches. The name is self-explanatory.

Barbara Jackson and Sandra Lagrone are new members of troop 20, Barbara having recently transferred from Highland School.

Troop 3, we heard, is practicing a playlet to give at Sherrouse School in assembly. Since the girls drew for parts, it should be quite interesting to see how it turns out. Brownies love dramatics, so it probably will be quite a production.

The office, we've been told has camp folders for Wawbansee, the Shreveport Girl Scout camp. Call and have one mailed if you are interested in trying to get in. It's a wonderful camp, but hard to get in, as Shreveport girls keep it filled. Don't blame 'em.

Ann Hite Has

Country Club Is Scene Of
Juniors And Seniors Prom

One of the gayest occasions of the season was the Neville High School Junior-Senior Prom held Friday night at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

More than two-hundred teenagers danced from nine until after midnight to the music of Ben Burton.

Colorful decorations of miniature teenagers and their varied activities were featured on each wall of the ballroom. Spotlights were used to highlight the theme of the dance. A mass of bright balloons hung from the center of the club and added to the evening's gaiety. Clarice and Goldie Roan's dancing studio provided a delightful intermission for the young dancers. Miss Elstner Frazier accompanied the group.

Punch and cookies were served during the evening, by the juniors at Neville honoring their upperclassmen.

Members of the city school board, the principal and faculty members at Neville chaperoned the dance.

Amateur Show
At Logtown

The public is anticipating the Amateur Show given on Tuesday evening at the Logtown School and being sponsored by the P.T. A. Door prizes will be given and home made cakes and coffee will be sold. Besides local talent, the Prairie Quartet will sing. All are invited.

A strong paper marketing bag with loop handles makes a fine container for toys, such as blocks and balls that tend to be scattered around. The bag is big enough so that a child can dump all his blocks in without having them overflow.

Class Room Teachers Honor
Mrs. M. Rowe With Luncheon

Spring blossoms were used on the luncheon table Saturday at the Country Club when the Monroe Class Room Teachers met and honored their State President Mrs. Minnie Mae Rowe.

Mrs. James Riddle, the president presided. An enjoyable program followed the luncheon. A skit, "At St. Peter's Gate" was presented by Hazel Joyce, Charlene Smith, Ione Hill, Orrie Rust, Minnie Upshaw, Ann Jones and Margaret Talschman. This was given to present the importance of membership in an educational organization such as the Class Room Teachers. Dorothy Stapleton, program director of station KFAZ gave an interesting talk on television and teachers. Mrs. Rowe, as state president gave a short talk. Guests present were: Mrs. Van Odum, Mrs. James A. Noe, Dorothy Stapleton, Eleona Brinsmade, Marjorie Oliver and the hostess, Mrs. Rowe. Swartz HD Club

The Swartz Home Demonstration Club met on Thursday in the home of Mrs. B. M. Hudson. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. E. D. Crum. Home Sweet Home was sung by members followed with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Roll call was answered with each member naming a good spring tonic. Reading of the minutes and treasury report was given by Mrs. Guy Armstrong. A business session followed with a report on the parish council meeting. Plans were made for observation of National Home Demonstration Week.

The program was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. D. A. Mears, who gave an interesting reading, "Touching Shoulders." Leaders giving reports were Family Life, Mrs. W. J. St. John, April Gardening Tips, Mrs. Archie Scott, Food Preparation, Mrs. Ruby Takewell and Landscaping, Mrs. E. W. Addie Pearce, Louise Shelton, Hazel Joyce, Byrnie Cason, Scottie Buchanan, Charlene Smith, Elizabeth Byrd, Ouida McGee, Gertrude Hart, Orrie Rust.

Troop 20, the new Brownie troop at Lexington, accompanied by leaders Mrs. Paul Neal, Mrs. W. H. McSherry, and mamas Mrs. Paul Blackmon and Mrs. W. F. Jackson went to camp Wednesday for their weekly meeting. A trip to camp always calls for food, so the girls took nosebag lunches. They also had a fire which burned to coals while they walked to the river. On their return they toasted marshmallows golden brown, then popped them between graham crackers with a piece of chocolate bar. Some - mores, the Scouts call these sandwiches. The name is self - explanatory.

Barbara Jackson and Sandra Latorne are new members of troop 20. Barbara having recently transferred from Highland School.

Troop 5, we heard, is practising a playlet to give at Sherrouse School in assembly. Since the girls drew for parts, it should be quite interesting to see how it turns out. Brownies love dramatics, so it probably will be quite a production.

The office, we've been told has camp folders for Wawbansee, the Shreveport Girl Scout camp. Call and have one mailed if you are interested in trying to get in. It's a wonderful camp, but hard to get in, as Shreveport girls keep it filled. Don't blame 'em.

Country Club Is Scene Of Juniors And Seniors Prom

One of the gayest occasions of the season was the Neville High School Junior-Senior Prom held Friday night at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

More than two-hundred teenagers danced from nine until after midnight to the music of Ben Bur-ton.

Colorful decorations of miniature teenagers and their varied activities were featured on each wall of the ballroom. Spotlights were used to highlight the theme of the dance. A mass of bright balloons hung from the center of the club and added to the evening's gaiety.

Clarice and Goldie Roan's dancing studio provided a delightful intermission for the young dancers. Miss Elstner Frazier accompanied the group.

Punch and cookies were served during the evening, by the juniors at Neville honoring their upper-classesmen.

Members of the city school board, the principal and faculty members at Neville chaperoned the dance.

best wishes for many more. Filling the home freezer:

You will have an opportunity of seeing the best methods to use in preparing fruits, vegetables, and poultry at a demonstration given by Miss Estelle Fournett, food preservation specialist, of L. S. U., and Miss Stella Jones, association poultry specialist, of L. S. U. These demonstrations will be given in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building, West Monroe, beginning at 10:00 a.m. May 1. Bugs - Bugs:

With the weather getting warm we can expect bugs to visit our gardens. Plenty of aphids now - nicotine spray can be used to control these. National HDC Week May 3-9

Louisiana homemakers in home demonstration clubs in all of Louisiana's 64 parishes will observe National Home Demonstration Week, May 3-9, by calling attention to the objectives and achievements of nationwide home demonstration work, announces Miss Ellen LeNoir, state home demonstration agent, L. S. U. Agricultural Extension Service.

Home demonstration clubs are organizations of rural women who work with their county home demonstration agents in "learning by doing" methods and practices which improve home and community life. Adopting as their slogan, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World," the members of these clubs represent an effective force in translating improved soils and farm income into better homes, more creative family life, and more progressive communities, points out Miss LeNoir.

Home demonstration work had its beginnings only 50 years ago, when the first farm demonstration was set up near Terrell, Tex., by the Walter C. Porter family, working with Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in demonstrating improved farming practices for the community. Dr. Knapp's idea that "what a man hears, he may doubt; what he sees, he may possibly doubt; but what he does himself, he cannot doubt," became the guiding principle for both farm and home demonstration work.

In observing the eighth National Home Demonstration Club Week along with the 50th anniversary of farm and home demonstration work, home demonstration clubs are planning to emphasize the importance of the home in developing values basic to a democratic society, strengthen the concept of local planning, acquaint young homemakers with the ways home demonstration work can serve their needs, and pay tribute to local leaders whose work has contributed to improved home and community living, Miss LeNoir asserts.

Bogart And June Allison Co-Star In 'Battle Circus'

The bravery, resourcefulness and stamina of the men and women of the Mobile Army Surgical Hospital Corps forms the backdrop for the stirring love story between Humphrey Bogart and June Allyson in "Battle Circus," new M-G-M drama now showing at the Paramount Theatre.

The film's title derives from the circus technique employed by mobile hospital units in Korea and the speed with which such front-line hospitals can be moved, set up and moved again when necessary. "Battle Circus" tells the story of the valiant personnel who make up these units and who devote their lives to saving the lives of the wounded. More particularly, it unfolds the relationship between Major Jed Webber (Humphrey Bogart), a surgeon whose cynicism as regards marriage is overcome by Lieut. Ruth McCara (June Allyson).

At first contemptuous of the new recruit, Jed is finally awed by her bravery and devotion, while Ruth, angered in the beginning at Jed's cruel attempts to use the war as an excuse for an easy romance, finally penetrates the shell of the man who has been disillusioned by an earlier marriage which turned out badly.

While "Battle Circus" focuses on this conflict between the surgeon and nurse, its scenes achieve a vivid reality and excitement in their unfoldment against the turmoil of the Korean battlefield. Director Richard Brooks, who also authored the screen play, has achieved a chilling tension in depicting such scenes as a rescue of wounded soldiers by helicopter while still under enemy fire, an episode in which Bogart and Robert Keith, playing his superior officer, perform surgery with mortar shells dropping on all sides, another episode in which a helicopter loaded with desperately needed blood is guided through a blinding storm by the lights of a jeep. Through mounting tension the story reaches its dramatic climax with a forced move of the unit loaded with casualties down a perilously steep mountain side to a safer road below.

Academy Award-winning Humphrey Bogart offers another hard-hitting and incisive portrayal as the rough, tough Jed Webber, and is ably abetted by the warm and moving performance of June Allyson as the girl who falls in love with him under enemy fire. Another stand-out role is played by Keenan Wynn, cast as a former circus roustabout, now a sergeant, who is responsible for the remarkable efficiency in tearing down, moving and erecting the massive tents used to house the mobile units. M-G-M also cast a number of its talented young new personalities in strategic supporting roles, among them, William Campbell as the captain at the controls of the helicopter, Perry Sheehan, Patricia Tueran, Adele Longmire, Jonathan Cott, Steve Forrest and Jeff Richards.

LOOKING SMALL — June Allyson and Humphrey Bogart make themselves as small as possible when enemy planes strafe their Mobile Army Surgical Hospital unit. The scene is from "Battle Circus," M-G-M's stirring love story taking place behind the front lines in Korea. "Battle Circus" opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

French Foreign Legion Featured In Tem Picture

Crackling with action, Universal-International's exciting Technicolor production, "Desert Legion," which opens Thursday at the Tem Theatre, blends the tale of a secret Algerian mountain community and the heroics of the French Foreign Legion into the type of entertaining film fare that will enthrall young and old alike.

Alan Ladd, a dashing figure in the uniform of the French Foreign Legion, adds even more stature to his star rating as he fights and loves his way through "Desert Legion" with one of the hardest-hitting performances of his movie career. Richard Conte, playing his first costume role as a villainous leader of a band of desert raiders, scores a smashing success with his portrayal. No less effective than her co-stars is gorgeous Arlene Dahl, who combines the sexiest wardrobe of the year with a fine emotional portrayal of a fiery beauty of Algeria.

Movie fans will cheer at the sight of one of their old favorites who makes a triumphant return to the screen in "Desert Legion." Akim Tamiroff, winner of two former Academy Award nominations, is back in the movies after a long illness and his artistic characterization of Ladd's Legion pal is a joy to behold.

Leon Askin, Oscar Beregi, Anthony Caruso, George Lewis and Henri Letondal round out a supporting group which helps immeasurably to make "Desert Legion" the wonderful entertainment that it is.

Producer Ted Richmond and Director Joseph Pevney can take deep bows for the showmanship display in which they have transferred the Georges Surdez novel, "The Demon Caravan," into an inspiring screen drama.

"Desert Legion" is enthusiastically recommended to those who love escapist stories, to action-lovers, romance fans — in fact to anybody who wants to enjoy an honest-to-goodness fine motion picture.

John Seitz and Frank Skinner receive cinematography and musical credits, respectively.

Justin Wilson To Be Chief Speaker At Banquet

Justin Wilson, famed teller of Louisiana Cajun stories, will be the guest speaker at the annual banquet of the OPHS Alumni Association Thursday night, May 7, Mrs. J. W. Cummins, alumni president announced yesterday.

Wilson, by profession a safety consultant, has become known all over the nation as a humorist who keeps his audience laughing with his portrayal of Pierre Plaisance, barefooted Cajun trapper.

Mrs. Cummins pointed out that all OPHS graduates and their wives or husbands could attend the banquet and were urged to do so. "As a matter of fact, any person attending OPHS as long as two years is welcome," she added.

"We want this year's banquet to be the best and we guarantee Justin Wilson will make you laugh."

The affair will honor the 1953 graduating class and will begin at 8 p.m. on the Hotel Frances roof. Election of Alumni officers to serve for the forthcoming year will also take place.

Justin Wilson To Be Chief Speaker At Banquet

Justin Wilson, famed teller of Louisiana Cajun stories, will be the guest speaker at the annual banquet of the OPHS Alumni Association Thursday night, May 7. Mrs. J. W. Cummins, alumni president announced yesterday.

Wilson, by profession a safety consultant, has become known all over the nation as a humorist who keeps his audience laughing with his portrayal of Pierre Plaisance, barefooted Cajun trapper.

Mrs. Cummins pointed out that all OPHS graduates and their wives or husbands could attend the banquet and were urged to do so. "As a matter of fact, any person attending OPHS as long as two years is welcome," she added. "We want this year's banquet to be the best and we guarantee Justin Wilson will make you laugh."

The affair will honor the 1953 graduating class and will begin at 8 p.m. on the Hotel Frances roof. Election of Alumni officers to serve for the forthcoming year will also take place.

"There are many reasons you should attend your high school banquet," Mrs. Cummins said. "Chief among these are the fellowship and the help we can give Ouachita Parish High."

At present tickets are on sale at the high school office on South Grand. Twin City business houses will have the tickets for sale soon.

Other Alumni officers assisting in the preparations are: J. Norman Coon, vice-president; Chester DeCuir, secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Adams, treasurer; and Lloyd E. Lenard publicity.

WHY WORRY?

If you need furniture, don't let new prices upset you. New furniture prices are hard to digest, and they most certainly flatten the old pocketbook.

We have some nice things here, most of which we obtained from Eastern markets. It is really good furniture, and while we don't give it away—we can mention our prices without whispering

It costs nothing to check with us. We may have exactly what you need at exactly the price you have in mind. See us, won't you?

The Skillet Club

By UNCLE FRANK KOHLER
(Chief Skilleteer)

Tastes in hamburgers vary among Skilletteers from here and there. As you may recall, we are of the school which handles them gently, dusts them with salt and pepper, and cooks them without grease in a very hot skillet lightly dusted with salt. But there are divergent views.

The youngest skilleteer on record is Bruce Weller, Buffalo Courier and Express Chapter, aged 11, and determined to become a chef. He mixes his ground beef with finely chopped onion, salt and pepper, drops each patty in a greased skillet, and places one teaspoon of water in an indentation atop each patty. He turns them when the water has cooked in and the right degree of coloring appears. The idea has something.

From the Masonic Veterans' Hospital in New Orleans, Skilleteer Vic Graphia, Jr. of the Times-Picayune Chapter sends his views. Says he can do away with this recipe all by himself. He fills a pie tin 1/2 inches deep in ground beef, after mixing the beef with minced garlic. He dots the meat with butter, and sprinkles it with Worcestershire and salt and pepper as desired.

He puts this in the oven, and when the meat begins to brown, sprinkles the top with chopped onion, and subsequently turns it to brown the other side. He adds,

"This is not a sandwich!"

From the Wichita Eagle Chapter come two interesting numbers by Skilleteer Bill Fairbanks of Montrose, Colorado. First, he makes patties by combining with each pound of ground meat, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard; 2 teaspoons grated onion; 1 teaspoon salt-pepper to taste. This he moistens with tomato catsup, then forms and fries the cakes.

We liked his second idea, too. He spreads raw beef on half a bun, seasons with salt and pepper, broils it, and then serves with catsup, either open-face or topped with the remaining halves of the buns, buttered and toasted. The juice permeates the bread delightfully.

A Massachusetts Skilleteer, H. G. Learned of the Worcester Gazette Chapter, seasons 1 1/2 pounds of ground beef with salt and pepper, forms it into patties, presses a slice of onion in each, tops with a slice of American cheddar cheese, and puts them in a skillet. He covers them with a can of condensed tomato soup, and bakes.

Another Buffalo Courier and Express Skilleteer, Thomas E. Pace, suggests "Cheeseburger a la Pace"—using 1 pound of ground round. He mixes with it 1/4 teaspoon of a seasoned salt; 1/2 teaspoon oregano; cup sherry or muscatel, plus salt and pepper as desired. He mixes this, rolls it out on a board, cuts round patties with a cup or biscuit cutter. These he cooks on a greased griddle, places a slice of cheese on each, covers them and continues cooking until the cheese is melted, and serves on buns, with thin slices of onion added.

Mrs. Louis J. Kosnar, Skilleteer from The Chicago Daily News Chapter, recommends "Devised Hamburgers." To 3/4 pound of ground beef she adds 1/4 teaspoon

Let's all give whole hearted support to the clean-up campaign being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Beside the aesthetic value of beautification, everything that is done to improve the parish enhances the value of your property. If the house or store next to you is well kept, then your place looks better and chill sauce; 1 teaspoon grated onion; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire; 1/4 teaspoon salt.

She combines these by tossing them lightly with a fork, finally broils them on a rack, four to five minutes to a side.

Skilleteer Normal Draper of the American Meat Institute contributes a glorious business. With every pound of beef, have your butcher grind in (if it is good, lean beef), 1/4 pound of beef kidney fat. Mix in 1 tablespoon ice water for every cup of meat, then make and broil the patties.

You will find, as many Skilletteers recommend, that ground chuck is less expensive, and some even claim tastier and juicier than ground round beef.

Send your favorite recipe to Morning World with a stamped, addressed envelope and you will receive your life membership card in The Skillet Club.

Sad But True

The Jaycees haven't said anything about garbage cans but there's lots that could be said. First, is your can covered? Is it in a well screened place so you and the neighbors don't see it everytime you walk outside? In many cities ordinances are being passed that garbage cans must be placed on an elevation so the dogs can't over turn them. A pretty stiff fine accompanies a violation. We'll never have cities that we can point to with pride—If there's garbage in all the alleys. Please walk out now—look at your garbage pail—and at your neighbors. What do you need to do about them?

Wanted!

Dr. Kramer at the Tuberculosis Sanatorium asked if one of the Garden Clubs will sponsor the beautification of their grounds. He says more color would raise the morale of the patients. He has in mind day lilies, iris and such plants that Ouachita parish gardeners will be glad to donate. This is a worthy project. Any garden club interested in this, call 3-2251. Our department will be glad to work with you on the plans.

American Holly

Now is the time to pollinate those American Hollies that don't berry. Tony Veazy and I are following L.S.U. Specialist Spurlock's instruction. We took some limbs with blooms from my tree that berries freely. These we put in a bucket of water under Tony's tree. We'll wait for the bees to do the rest. Mr. Spurlock says sometime this produces berries—sometime not.

'April On The Ouchita' That's the name of the flower show to be sponsored by the Welcome Garden Club on April 23 from 3:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Place: Methodist Youth Center, West Monroe. You're invited. Their shows are always of the highest type, educational and beautiful.

Interesting Gardens There's only one word that will describe the immaculate beauty of the Shotwell garden, 408 Forsythe. That word is "groomed" and I mean well-groomed. There never seems to be anything dying, or hanging over out of place. I love to pass there. Just a look gives me a peaceful feeling.

I've just been through the Jaffe garden, 211 Howard Avenue, Monroe. If you're out that way be sure to stop and see that pink Mary Wallace rose on the trellis. It's lovely and blooms for six months. The owners love unusual plants and really have a collection. Mrs. A. R. Butler, Mrs. Primos and Mrs. Jaffe must get together some time. They all are such good gardeners and grow so many "unordinary" plants. My grammar is showing, isn't it?

Coloring Concrete

Dr. Reich from L.S.U. gave us some good news last Monday when he spoke at the Monroe Garden Club. He says there is a stain that will color concrete that has been laid for years. The surface must be scrubbed then the stain put on by hand. It sizzles like a cocoa when applied. It's permanent because Dr. Reich has used it at his home. The colors come only in green and brown. There are several shades green, red brown and yellow brown. One of the local stores has written for the agency for this stain.

Congratulations!

The April issue of Farm and Ranch Southern Agriculturist carries a beautifully colored picture of four Monroe women who have been outstanding leaders in hat renovation in the Twin Cities. The women are modeling some of the hats they had just completed. An accompanying article describes some of the work the women have done on hats. The leaders shown in the picture are Mrs. Maud Mayo, Mrs. Blanche Ray, Mrs.

GOLDEN WEDDING — Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Moore of Ball celebrated their Golden Anniversary Sunday. With them were six of their eight children. Mr. and Mrs. Moore are the parents of Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Moore of Bastrop and the grandparents of Mrs. B. L. Spillers of West Monroe.

Josephine Whetstone and Mrs. Margaret Webb. Mrs. Louise Smith was out of town when the picture was made, but her work has been equally as outstanding. These girls deserved this recognition. Time's up. See you again next Sunday in this same column.

PROMINENT DESIGNER—"I designed this to flatter the average miss—5' 5" or shorter," says American Designer Alan Phillips of Lentz Diminutives who banished "alteration blues" when he developed his true-to-you sizing. If you're the petite type, you'll have no problem fitting this lovely creation. Not only is the length right, but it fits beautifully across your bosom, waist and through the hips. Just think of the saving of time and patience. Best of all, you'll have a copy of an original from one of America's finest designers. Alan Phillips is noted for his subtle handling of fabrics, and his unusual details. See how he curves the neckline in front, squares it in back. The skirt is one of the most graceful you'll see—unpressed pleats in front, all smoothness in back. For spring parties, this would be pretty in silk taffeta or shantung. For summer, make another version in a cube-cool cotton. Thanks to Alan Phillips, no alteration problems need worry you.

Pattern A853 is available in Misses' Sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 requires 4 1/4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send fifty cents (in coins) for Pattern A853 to Morning World Pattern Department, P. O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York 11, N. Y. Please Print plainly your name, address with zone, style number and size.

The Skillet Club

By UNCLE FRANK KOHLER
(Chief Skilleteer)

Tastes in hamburgers vary among Skilletteers from here and there. As you may recall, we are of the school which handles them gently, dusts them with salt and pepper, and cooks them without grease in a very hot skillet lightly dusted with salt. But there are divergent views.

The youngest skilleteer on record is Bruce Weller, Buffalo Courier and Express Chapter, aged 11, and determined to become a chef. He mixes his ground beef with finely chopped onion, salt and pepper, drops each patty in a greased skillet, and places one teaspoon of water in an indentation atop each patty. He turns them when the water has cooked in and the right degree of coloring appears. The idea has something.

From the Masonic Veterans' Hospital in New Orleans, Skilleteer Vic Graphia, Jr. of the Times-Picayune Chapter sends his views. Says he can do away with this recipe all by himself. He fills a pie tin $\frac{1}{2}$ inches deep in ground beef, after mixing the beef with minced garlic. He dots the meat with butter, and sprinkles it with Worcestershire and salt and pepper as desired.

He puts this in the oven, and when the meat begins to brown, sprinkles the top with chopped onion, and subsequently turns it to brown the other side. He adds,

"This is not a sandwich!"

From the Wichita Eagle Chapter come two interesting numbers by Skilleteer Bill Fairbanks of Montrose, Colorado. First, he makes patties by combining with each pound of ground meat, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard; 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish; 2 teaspoons grated onion; 1 teaspoon salt—pepper to taste. This he moistens with tomato catsup, then forms and fries the cakes.

We liked his second idea, too. He spreads raw beef on half a bun, seasons with salt and pepper, broils it, and then serves with catsup, either open-face or topped with the remaining halves of the buns, buttered and toasted. The juice permeates the bread delightfully.

A Massachusetts Skilleteer, H. G. Learned of the Worcester Gazette Chapter, seasons $1\frac{1}{2}$ pounds of ground beef with salt and pepper, forms it into patties, presses a slice of onion in each, tops with a slice of American cheddar cheese, and puts them in a skillet. He covers them with a can of condensed tomato soup, and bakes.

Another Buffalo Courier and Express Skilleteer, Thomas E. Pace, suggests "Cheeseburger a la Pace"—using 1 pound of ground round. He mixes with it $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon of a seasoned salt; $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon oregano; cup sherry or muscatel, plus salt and pepper as desired. He mixes this, rolls it out on a board, cuts round patties with a cup or biscuit cutter. These he cooks on a greased griddle, places a slice of cheese on each, covers them and continues cooking until the cheese is melted, and serves on buns, with thin slices of onion added.

Mrs. Louis J. Kosinar, Skilleteer from The Chicago Daily News Chapter, recommends "Devised Hamburgers." To $\frac{3}{4}$ pound of ground beef she adds $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon

The Home Shift

With

Mildred Swift

Let's all give whole hearted support to the clean-up campaign being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Beside the aesthetic value of beautification, everything that is done to improve the parish enhances the value of your property. If the house or store next to you is well kept, then your place looks better and chill sauce; 1 teaspoon grated onion; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire; $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt.

She combines these by tossing them lightly with a fork, finally broils them on a rack, four to five minutes to a side.

Skilleteer Normal Draper of the American Meat Institute contributes a glorious business. With every pound of beef, have your butcher grind in (if it is good, lean beef), $\frac{1}{4}$ pound of beef kidney fat. Mix in 1 tablespoon ice water for every cup of meat, then make and broil the patties.

You will find, as many Skilletteers recommend, that ground chuck is less expensive, and some even claim tastier and juicier than ground round beef.

Send your favorite recipe to Morning World with a stamped, addressed envelope and you will receive your life membership card in The Skillet Club.
